FEAR ALL DEAD IN MINE BLAST

BARTLEY, W. Va., Jan. 11 (AP) — Rescue crews found a third body today in the blast-torn Bartley No. 1 mine of the Pond Creek Pocahontas Coal Corp. and struggled through debris to within a few hundred feet of "65 or 70" of the remaining 88 trapped men.

Reds Recall 100 Officers to Stand Trial in Finn Rout

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 11 (AP)—Reports were received here today that more than 100 Soviet Russian officers had been called back from the Finnish front, some of them to face trial before special courts.

The reports, which reached Norwegian and Finnish quarters from numerous sources, said the officers would be tried before courts consisting of people's commissars.

The Russian commissariat dealing with supplies was reported especially to be under a penetrating inquiry, which, it was said, already has led to executions.

Immediate verification of the reports was lacking.

Observers here were inclined to link the reports with the Moscow announcement that Mikhail M. Kaganovich had been relieved as commissar for the Soviet aviation industry and "transferred to another post."

Kaganovich held a key post, and one of his duties was to supply materials to plane factories.

There were persistent reports that the Russian forces were being reorganized because of weaknesses shown up in the invasion of Finland.

War Diary

132d Day

European warfare was marked by continued Finnish success against the Russian invaders and by conflicting British and German claims over air engagements fought yesterday.

Germany declared that three of nine attacking British planes had been downed when forays against the north German coast were beaten off without Nazi losses.

Britain said one British and one German plane were downed. Copenhagen dispatches told of reports that 100 or more Russian army officers had been summoned to Moscow to stand trial in a new army purge following rout of Red forces by the Finns. Some executions have already taken place, it was said.

Reports from Denmark and other sources indicated the German and British aircraft clashed at least four times yesterday, three times over the German island of Sylt and once at sea over Heligoland Bight.

British fighting planes and aircraft batteries today offered determined resistance to Nazi planes seen over the British coast from southeastern Scotland to the Thames estuary.

On the western front better weather gave a spurt to aerial activity. The Allies and Germany each announced that two of the other's planes had been downed.

Advices from Finland said that Finnish troops, following up a series of dramatic gains, were heavily attacking a Red army division which was surrounded south of Lake Kianta. Two other Soviet divisions already have been routed on the same east-central front, where the present fighting is under way.

Reds Drop Women Spies From Planes

By PETER DE HAMMER GUDME
International News Service Special Correspondent

HELSINKI, Jan. 11—Soviet women have been acting as secret agents for Russia in the war against Finland, it was disclosed today as the Finnish high command claimed Russian troops have been hurled back across the border at four separate points.

Revelation of the role played by the Soviet women came with discovery of a group of them hiding—half-frozen—in the woods behind the Finnish lines.

Authorities ascertained they were part of the secret service organization of the U. S. S. R. and had landed on Finnish territory by parachuting from Soviet war planes.

On the eastern frontier, military authorities said, the Red army invaders had been beaten back to their own territory in the Tornua, Raate, Roukkalanjaervi and Tuulijarvi sectors. Finnish troops pursuing the fleeing Russians followed them into Soviet territory.

200 REDS KILLED

On the Karelian Isthmus where the Russians have launched repeated unsuccessful attacks against the Mannerheim line, Finnish forces advanced at several points more than a mile.

The gains were registered by means of fierce patrol skirmishes, supported by heavy artillery fire.

While a virtual pause in operations was reported from the far northeastern front, a Russian bat-

Company officials clung to the hope that some survived yesterday's explosion, but experienced miners in this southern West Virginia coal community shook their heads and expressed fear all perished.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN.

The body of Evans was discovered as rescue workers advanced to within 1200 feet of the estimated center of the explosion which tore through three sections of the pit.

HOPE TO REACH 65

R. E. Salvati, vice-president of the company, in charge of rescue work, issued this statement at 8 a. m.:

"If we have luck we should reach 65 or 70 men in a matter of hours."

He said those men were believed to be in the third and fourth left entries. Crews have penetrated more than 6000 feet since they started, Salvati added.

Wives and children of the trapped miners and hundreds of curious who gathered near the mine stood dumbly in a cold, sleety rain, waiting for word from the eight rescue crews.

Rescue Worker Carl J. Dickenson, emerging from the mine at 3 a. m., declared:

"It looks bad. I don't think there's much chance."

"STILL HAVE HOPE"

Later, however, the mine office reported the third rescue crew to enter the shaft had found the air

Truck Strike Off; Union to Deal Now With Each Owner

A general strike of truck drivers was averted shortly before noon today when more than 1500 drivers, at a meeting in the Municipal Building, Shawmut ave. and West Brookline st., South End, voted to return to work.

They had taken a "holiday" this morning and trucks were tied up throughout the city while they held a two-hour session. President John J. Sullivan of Local 25 urged the men to return to their jobs at noon.

The men voted to adopt Sullivan's plan of dealing with each truck owner separately to enforce their demands for a 48-hour week and a flat wage raise of $1 in each class of trucks operated.

3600 MEN INVOLVED

More than 3600 men would have been involved in the general strike which up to noontime threatened Boston's food supply and other transportation.

Sullivan called the meeting for this morning as police leaves were cancelled and cruising cars were on duty at the city's approaches where trouble would be expected if the men voted to strike.

The large hall was filled to overflowing and hundreds of drivers stood on the stairs and in the hall of the municipal building.

Sullivan's plan now calls for union action with each individual truck owner, instead of acting against the united front of owners.

EXTRA POLICE ON JOB

As a precautionary measure, Capt. Thomas F. Gleavey, acting superintendent of police, revoked all days off and ordered stations in divisions where warehouses are numerous to prepare for any emergency.

Saltonstall, III, Eyes Truck Crisis

Although confined to his home again today by a heavy cold from which he has been suffering for a week, Gov. Saltonstall was in constant communication by telephone with his secretaries regarding developments in the truck drivers' "holiday."

As tension in the truck situation developed it was indicated at his office that he would take action as he did a year ago to prevent a truck strike which would seriously hamper food supplies here.

formed of the holiday declaration, likewise commanded all divisions to patrol with fully-manned tourist cars and to guard approaches to the city and other points where trouble would occur should a strike commence.

Walsh Tax Demand Stirs Politicians

Political circles locally were stirred today by a speech of United States Senator David I. Walsh in the Senate in Washington advocating extension of income taxes below the present level and increase in rates for middle income groups.

"I don't see how we can keep postponing the inevitable date of levying more taxes. There are only two ways of bringing about government economy, by cutting expenses and increasing taxes," he declared.

NAZI FLIERS AGAIN RAID BRITISH AREA

LONDON, Jan. 11 (AP)—German raiders appeared today off the strategic Firth of Forth in Scotland and the estuaries of the Humber and Thames on England's eastern coast, the air ministry announced.

The renewed flights of the Nazis over the British coast met quick resistance from British fighters and anti-aircraft batteries.

The Evening News said that the last 24 hours had been the busiest since the Royal Air Force since the war began and the British fliers "have had to fight their fiercest battles."

Today's flights brought the first German air visits of the war to the Tyneside, important shipbuilding and shipping center. One plane was reported to have flown over the London area.

DRIVEN FROM SHIP

The Air Ministry said German planes attempting to bomb a merchant vessel off the Norfolk coast were intercepted and driven off by defense fighters.

Its communique said "considerable air activity off the east coast of England and Scotland" occurred during the morning and listed raids

4 Children Overcome in Roxbury Fire

Four young children, the oldest 10, were overcome by smoke in a fire of suspicious origin in Winthrop st., Roxbury, shortly before noon today.

Firemen rescued them from a smoke filled third floor apartment and summoned ambulances and rescue squads.

With inhalators the firemen worked over the stricken children at the home of a neighbor while awaiting the arrival of ambulances. The children overcome were Patricia Burke, 10; her sister, Anna, 2, and their brothers, Edward, 5, and John 4.

How the fire started, or how the children were trapped and nearly killed was not learned immediately. Police were investigating circumstances surrounding the fire.

Woman Dies In Plunge Off Barge

Stumbling as she tried to step from a lighter to a pier, a woman plunged 20 feet, crashed through the thin ice and was drowned today in Boston Harbor, a short distance from the harbor police station.

The victim was tentatively identified by police as Mae Patterson of Everett, employed at a West End dine and dance hotel.

According to Sgt. William Shirar of the harbor police, the woman and two acquaintances had been visiting on the lighter, a sand barge, tied up near a freight terminal off Commercial st.

Her companions, Gertrude Kay of Athens st., Cambridge, and Viola Frank, Canton st., Randolph, had crossed the two-foot gap between the boat and the wharf when they heard the woman scream. Turning, they saw her floundering in the ice and water below.

Harbor police tried to reach the victim by tossing her ropes. Meanwhile, Michael F. Powers, headquarters radio dispatcher, ordered the police boat McShane and two North End cruisers to the scene.

Special service officers arrived with floodlights, and soon the body was sighted by Patrolmen Henry Weiss of the police launch, who dragged the victim from the water. She was pronounced dead on arrival at City Hospital.

Husband on Trial As Slayer of Bride

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Jan. 11 (AP)—Gaylor Donald Joy, 33, son of a Troy, N. Y., shirt manufacturer, faced trial today on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of his wife, Ethel, 39.

Mrs. Joy was found unconscious in her Ventnor apartment last Oct. 28 and died 24 hours later. The couple had been married 19 months.

Thieves Active In City Hall

Thefts from City Hall offices, and petty pilfering of desks were revealed today when it was learned the detail of police on duty there under Sergt. Stephen Higgins were making a secret investigation.

While the police were investigating the theft of three typewriters, a fourth was stolen. It was revealed today. The machine was stolen from the office of Councilor Michael J. Ward of Brighton.

His secretary, Miss Connie Cleary, reported the machine had been taken from the office some time during the night.

Desks have been rifled and the petty thieves have even taken holiday greeting cards in a wave of thievery which has police and attaches dizzy. Police say it is the worst series of petty thefts at City Hall in 10 years. It is believed the thief, or thieves, loot the offices while the officer on duty nights is running the elevator.

'SILVER HIPS GIRL' SOON MAY DANCE!

Salute for a lovely little lady!

Fifteen-year-old Alice Copeland of Grove st., Malden, was born without hip sockets, with the result she could not walk, and since her birth medical science has been seeking to make up that deficiency.

Of that long ordeal, Alice says today only:

"It wasn't so bad. No pain." That, with a winsome smile and a lifted eyebrow, a toss of the head; for today Alice faces the prospect of a new life, in which she will run and play with other youngsters—and even dance!

Last year Dr. Marius N. Smith-Petersen, orthopedic surgeon of the Massachusetts General Hospital, became interested in her case, and, although 13 previous operations had failed, he said she could be cured.

In two operations he put silver sockets, which he invented, into her hips, and now she is assured that after one minor operation she will be well.

At home, still, she studies with a teacher who calls every day. She goes coasting, skating, and rows on a machine to build up her weakened muscles.

And what does she look forward to most?

"Gosh," she said. "I want to go to a dance!"

Thanks to the doctor, and her own courage, one day she will; and with that smile—she'll do all right.

Snow, Rain, Warmer For Hub

More snow tonight, but possibly changing to rain by tomorrow, was forecast for New England as a 20-day stretch of sub-normal cold gradually relaxed its grip.

Although below-zero readings were recorded in many places again today, slowly rising temperatures were forecast through today and tomorrow.

Northeast, shifting to east and southeast winds, increasing in velocity, from Eastport, Me., to Sandy Hook, N. J., were predicted by the weather man.

He reported that since Dec. 22 the temperature has hovered on an average of about 7 degrees below normal.

Bangor, Me., was the coldest spot in New England today with the thermometer registering 8 below zero.

The Coast Guard ice breaker Kickapoo reported she was breaking up six-inch ice in Union River bay, northeast of Portland, Me., and the Travis is still trying to clear Plymouth harbor.

Jurors Weigh Attack Case

MARGARET KELLEY AND MARY FEENEY
Jury Deliberates in Attack Case

A jury in Middlesex Superior Criminal Court opened deliberations today on the fate of John Whalen, 28, of Wendell st., Cambridge, accused of attacking and robbing a woman and later threatening her against calling police.

During the trial, which began Tuesday, Miss Margaret Kelly, 21, of Windsor st., Somerville, identified Whalen as the man who snatched her handbag containing a wrist watch, a powder puff and 15 cents.

"He wrenched my arm three times in grabbing my purse," Miss Kelly testified.

Police told Judge Frederick W. Fosdick and a jury that Miss Kelly fainted after the attack.

Three days later, according to testimony, Whalen accosted Miss Kelly in Somerville.

"You'll get worse than what I gave you before if you call police," Whalen is quoted as having warned her.

DORCHESTER MAN DEAD

Samuel Hough, 60, of Rouses st., Dorchester, was dead today, victim of a lingering illness. His body was found in bed by a physician who had been treating him for some time.

SAWYER, PREACHER-SOLON, TO QUIT LEGISLATURE

After 27 consecutive years of service in the Legislature, Rep. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, veteran minister-solon, today announced he would retire at the end of his present term because he is "tired of being an errand boy."

Cherryman, reformer, liberal, he has been a colorful figure in Massachusetts politics for more than a quarter century and today said that the biennial session was the final straw which made him decide to quit.

He also forecast that others in the state Senate and House of Representatives would probably follow suit. He said there was no longer any incentive to serve at a $2000 salary for two years of work.

JOB UNATTRACTIVE

"As a profession the job of legislator is no longer attractive," he said.

"When I first was elected, men who came to the Legislature received their election as an honor for long and faithful service."

"Then came a dozen more departments at the State House; laws requiring the licensing of local farmers, plumbers, barbers, etc., and each community found that a goodly number of its people had to visit the State House on business several times a year."

"Well, they would come to the State House, not knowing where to go, or whom to see and the local representative, or senator, had to become their errand boy. As a reward the legislator would be elected again and again until legislative work became his entire profession.

SALARIES HALVED

"The biennial session which went into effect this year closes the halls of legislation for the first time since 1634; the salaries of representatives and senators is cut in two; instead of $3000 for one year of service each member receives $2000 for a full session."

"He draws his last pay in July and then for the next 18 months must carry on as an errand boy without pay. I shall serve out my term until January, 1941, and will carry out my recess commission assignments. But then I'm through."

He pointed out that three representatives have been appointed to state jobs and will not be back for the next session; others have announced their candidacies for county or municipal offices and reiterated his assertion that many others would be looking for some other job than that of legislator before 1941.

THREE HAVE STATE JOBS

Rep. Gustave W. Everburg of Woburn; Edward D. Sirois of Lawrence and Ralph Mahar of Orange,

REV. ROLAND D. SAWYER
Quits Beacon Hill

are the three who now have state jobs.

Sawyer pointed out that Joseph R. Cotton, president of the Senate, has been appointed chairman of the public utilities department; Sen. Albert Cole of Lynn, was elected mayor of that city; Sen. Arthur Blanchard of Cambridge, had resigned but later withdrew his resignation; Albert E. Morris of Everett, Democratic flood leader, ran for mayor and was defeated; Rep. George T. Ashe of Lowell, was elected mayor; Rep. Paul M. Goddard of Newton, was elected mayor as was Rep. William Hastings of Malden.

Rep. Philip G. Bowker of Brookline is a candidate for Congress; so is Rep. Colin J. Cameron of Amesbury. Rep. James S. Coffey of East Boston, was elected to the City Council, defeating Rep. Susan Donovan. Sen. Edward Nutting of Leominster and Eugene Giroux of Somerville were unsuccessful mayoralty candidates.

"All these," said Sawyer today, "show what has been caused so far by the biennial session and the low remuneration for two years of service."

He said he had talked with a number of associates who are seeking new fields of endeavor and at least half a dozen who will refuse to run for re-election.

RAN FOR GOVERNOR

Sawyer has continually attracted statewide attention since he first entered politics. As a Congregational minister he early showed a complete independence in thought and action. In 1912 he ran for governor on the Socialist ticket. In those days a Socialist was thought of as a Stalinist in today.

In 1916 he was elected to the Legislature on a landslide of votes from his district. Born in New Hampshire, he had early worked in a Haverhill shoe factory. When his health gave way he studied for the ministry.

"LABOR-DEMOCRAT"

Calling himself a Labor-Democrat he was always in the forefront in fights for labor reforms. He fought the Anti-Saloon League. He urged fellow ministers to take a sane view of the alcohol problem and at one time was going to open a saloon in which nothing containing over six per cent alcohol would be sold.

He wrote a series of editorials on the liquor problem which were published in pamphlet form and circulated throughout Germany by the Kaiser's government. Continually he has been a fighter on the side of the under dog and year after year his constituents returned him to Beacon Hill.

He was one of the first to file a compulsory automobile insurance bill. He sought to have the laws changed so that a jury decision of 10 to 2 would decide the guilt, or innocence of defendants. He sought to have moral training part of public school education.

URGED SACCO PROBE

He fought for an investigation into the Sacco-Vanzetti first trial on the grounds that many persons felt they were convicted because of war hysteria against radicals. He first started the fight to save New England's cotton mills when the South first entered that field of industry. He ordered studies made of unemployment, attributing it as a cause for crime.

He was the man who started the investigation into the conduct of Atty.-Gen. Arthur K. Reading in the now famous Decimo case which resulted in ending Reading's political career.

For 27 years Sawyer has been one of the most active legislators in the state, and today he said:

"I'm through."

Doherty Wills All to Widow

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (AP)—Henry L. Doherty's great fortune, composed mostly of Cities Service securities and Florida real estate, has been bequeathed in its entirety to his widow, who before their marriage 11 years ago had nursed him through a critical illness. The will of the 69-year-old utilities magnate, who died Dec. 26 in Philadelphia, was filed for probate today. It was brief and the only beneficiary listed was Mrs. Grace Doherty, the widow.

There was no value placed upon the estate, other than the usual formal declaration that it was "more than $10,000." An appraisal for tax transfer purposes will be made later.

Call Widow 'Senile' in Will Fight

Testimony on the alleged eccentric behavior of the late Mrs. Emma Young, wealthy Arlington widow, continued today after Dr. Abraham Myerson, psychiatrist, had declared the woman was suffering from "senile melancholia" on the day she bequeathed a $400,000 estate to Frank M. Archer, Jr. Dr. Myerson was a witness for Paul C. Templeton of Hartford, a clerk who is contesting the will on the grounds that he is an heir-at-law of Mrs. Young.

In earlier testimony, Archer had testified under cross-examination that he had filed a petition to become guardian of Mrs. Young on the grounds that she was insane. The court appointed him her guardian, he said, on April 7, 1930. In direct testimony he had said that Mrs. Young loved him as a son.

Archer also testified that he applied for guardianship of Mrs. Young after receiving a letter from Dr. Myerson who had examined the widow on Jan. 3, 1930.

In the letter, which was admitted in evidence, Dr. Myerson had stated as his opinion that Mrs. Young was suffering from senile melancholia, and added:

"The outlook in these cases is hopeless."

Dr. Myerson, following Archer on the stand, testified that when he examined Mrs. Young he found her depressed and moody, disinclined for any society, and with an unjustified fear of cancer and blindness. She frequently expressed a terror of dying a pauper, he said.

Dr. Myerson was asked if it was his opinion that on the day Mrs. Young drew up and signed her will, three years before his examination of her, she was then suffering from senile melancholia.

"My opinion is," Dr. Myerson answered, "that she had the same mental disease at that time as at the time when I examined her in 1930."

Federal Projects' Labor Costs Rise

Cost of labor on 130 federal projects completed in Massachusetts through 1937, 1938 and 1939 equalled 28.17 per cent of the total cost, a slight increase over 1935, an analysis of the Public Works Department showed today.

Officials explained the general average of unskilled labor on highway projects has increased from 50 to 62½ cents per hour.

New Court Battle Over Dodge Fortune

DETROIT, Jan. 11 (AP)—The fight over the $11,000,000 estate of Daniel Dodge, with the ink hardly dry on one court's verdict, headed toward another tribunal today and a new chapter in the family dispute over the automobile fortune.

Counsel for two of Daniel's sisters—Mrs. Isabel Sloane and Mrs. Winifred Seyburn—prepared to appeal to Circuit Court the verdict of Probate Judge Thomas C. Murphy under which Daniel's widow, Annie Laurie, receives $1,250,000.

Charles Wright, Jr., attorney for the two sisters, announced he would appeal within 20 days. Renville Wheat, attorney for a third sister, Mrs. Frances Johnson, was undecided whether to appeal.

A new suit thus will involve mother, daughter-in-law, and two daughters in the continuing series of court fights over the $40,000,000 left by the late John F. Dodge, pioneer motorcar manufacturer.

A disinherited son, John Duval Dodge, twice has gone to court to break his father's will. On the first occasion he received a $1,600,- 000 settlement. A second suit is pending.

In his verdict yesterday Judge Murphy, while making no mention of sums for each beneficiary, ruled that the $11,000,000 belonged to Dodge's estate and should be distributed in accordance with his will.

The verdict, in effect, gives Annie Laurie Dodge, 21, whose former switchboard job paid her $18 a week, the sum of $1,250,000, and Daniel's mother, Mrs. Mathilda R. Wilson, approximately $3,500,000. The state and federal governments receive $6,000,000 in taxes.

The $11,000,000 was accumulated income from Daniel's share in the $40,000,000 trust fund set up by his father. He died when he was 21.

four years before he was to have received the money. In view of this the three sisters had contended that the income should be divided among them, instead of being considered Daniel's estate.

Senate Group O.K.'s Murphy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP)—A Senate judiciary subcommittee today recommended confirmation of Atty.-Gen. Frank Murphy as an associate justice of the Supreme Court, after Murphy had voluntarily appeared before the group.

The unanimous action came after Murphy had assured Senators that he opposed use of force "by either side" in labor disputes and that he believed the Supreme Court has the power and duty to invalidate acts of Congress when they contravene the Federal Constitution.

Senators Burke (D.) of Nebraska, chairman of the sub-committee; Austin (R.) of Vermont, Connally (D.) of Texas and King (D.) of Utah all fired questions at Murphy about his views of the Constitution and duties of a Supreme Court justice.

The nomination now must be considered by the full judiciary committee, probably Monday, and then sent to the Senate for expected confirmation. Murphy's appointment as attorney general a year ago was confirmed, 78 to 7.

Threat Note Puts Suspect in Hospital

NEW BEDFORD, Jan. 11—Alleged author of a threat note to Miss Emma M. Salles, sister of the late Dr. John M. Salles, prominent physician, Louis A. Lemlin, 56, of Brock ave., today was in Taunton State Hospital under a 35-day observation commitment.

Lemlin was charged with writing Miss Salles a letter in which he demanded $200 or her property would be destroyed.

HULL RAPS TRADE CRITICS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP)—Ascribing "flagrant and unscrupulous suppression and misuse of material facts" to critics of the reciprocal trade issue, was voiced in Hull declared today that it had expanded markets for American farm and manufactured products.

He appealed to the House ways and means committee to renew the expiring trade agreements act in order to aid in world-wide economic readjustment after the European war.

"The choice before us," Hull said, "is whether we shall lead the way toward the slough of despair and ruin for ourselves and for others, or toward the heights of economic progress, sustained prosperity and enduring peace for our nation and for the world."

TAKES ISSUE WITH CONGRESS

He took issue with members of Congress who are demanding Senate ratification of each agreement, by asserting that the method followed in State Department negotiations "is democratic in every sense of the word."

In concluding the pact, Hull said, American tariffs have been lowered only where they are "unduly burdensome" and where other countries have agreed to accord better treatment to United States exports in return for tariff adjustments.

CITES FIGURES

At the end of 1932, Hull said, "after two and one-half years of Hawley-Smoot tariff embargoes, farm cash income had dropped from $11,200,000,000 to $4,700,000,000. By 1933, he said, it had risen to $7,600,000,000, excluding benefit payments."

"The most reckless claims have been made in connection with the cattle and the dairy industries," he said. "The income of the cattle industry, which had fallen from $1,495,000,000 in 1929 to $621,000,000 in 1932, rose to $1,144,000,000 in 1933."

"The income of the dairy industry, which had fallen from $1,844,000,000 in 1929 to $981,000,000 in 1932, rose to $1,398,000,000 in 1933."

Congress 'Stymied' On Budget, Lynching

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP)—Congress apparently had stymied itself on the anti-lynching bill and an independent budgetary survey today as a House move gained momentum to keep 1941 expenditures within President Roosevelt's estimate of $8,424,000,000.

House passage yesterday by 232 to 131 of the Geagan bill making lynching a federal crime had been anticipated, but Southern Democrats in the Senate announced that they were determined to filibuster the measure to death.

Although no revenge was involved, House Democratic chief claims simultaneously hung up a red light against the Harrison resolution to debate a joint congressional committee to comb all budget recommendations, including those for defense, before any appropriation or tax measure are passed.

The Senate adopted this proposal yesterday without a roll call.

Administration leaders in the House took the view that the survey might be all right for future congresses, but the House has several supply bills ready and they do not intend to hold them up for a joint inquiry.

The first of these, the $267,000,000 deficiency bill containing funds for emergency neutrality and defense needs, was called up in the House today.

Meanwhile, the House appropriations committee was reported to have voted secretly against letting any of its subcommittees exceed the President's spending recommendations.

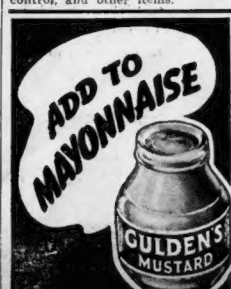

Many congressmen saw in this move an attempt to show that the separate budget inquiry proposed by Senator Harrison (D.) of Mississippi would be unnecessary.

TRIP TO WHITE HOUSE

The action followed a trip to the White House by the House Democratic steering committee, whose members reported Mr. Roosevelt told them to stay within his budget so that the national debt limit of $45,000,000,000 would not have to be raised.

If this is to be avoided, Congress also will have to levy $460,000,000 of new taxes—as recommended by the President—to pay for emergency defense costs. Major sentiment now appears to be against doing this in an election year.

Moreover, several senators, including Adams (D.) of Colorado, feel that the extra defense budget should be diverted to restore presidential cuts in farm, relief, flood control, and other items.

Wally Pastor Shelters Strip Tease Scoffer

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11 (AP)—Patricia Winfrey, who threw a brick through a Hollywood store window and went to jail because becoming a strip-tease dancer appeared her only alternative, is in a minister's home today.

The minister, Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, had taken a chance, too, when he married Wallis Simpson and the Duke of Windsor. He lost his parish, says he was forced to leave England, and has found life no bed of roses since. Some radio and church work has come his way, however.

Dr. Jardine said Miss Winfrey, 27, of New York, could remain with him and his wife until she got a new start.

"I'm so happy I could cry," cried Miss Winfrey, as she left jail yesterday in a drizzling rain.

Municipal Judge Newcomb Condee reminded her she must be in his court Monday for sentence and a probation hearing. Indications were, however, the court was inclined toward leniency.

Red Army General Flees as Finns Win

tation was broken up just north of Lake Ladoga and some 200 Russians were killed.

Despite snow storms, Russian war planes bombed several towns along the southern Finnish coast. Results were not revealed.

On the Salla front, where the Finns have smashed still another Russian division, hard fighting was reported in progress.

GENERAL IN FLIGHT

At the same time, as the Finns carried out a "mopping up" program on the Suomussalmi front, following defeat of the 44th Soviet Division, astonishing details of that Russian debacle reached Helsinki.

As soon as the Finnish victory became inevitable the Russian political commissars in charge of the "morale" of the Red army soldiers fled. As soon as these "watchdogs" had disappeared, the Finns claimed, the Russian soldiers surrendered in droves.

Booty seized by the conquering Finnish forces from the broken worth no less than $10,000,000. It comprised hundreds of tons of shells and millions of rounds of smaller ammunition.

Finnish military reports said that Gen. Vinogradov, chief of the Russian Army Corps, and a few of his followers fled into the woods when the 44th Division cracked up—just as Gen. Sasonov of Russia did after the historic battle of Tannenberg in the World War.

Eyewitness Tells

Of Finn Victory

By GEOFFREY COX

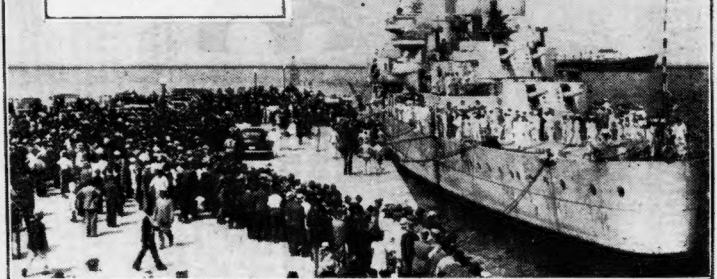

London Daily Express and International News Service Special Correspondent

KAYNA, Finland, Jan. 11 (INS)—On a snow-covered highway only 12 miles from the Russian border I watched the closing stages today of a battle in which Finnish troops wiped out the 44th Soviet Division on the Suomussalmi front.

For miles the road was blocked with trucks, guns, tanks and other war gear.

Finnish troops with rifles in hand were steadily working their way ahead. They looked ghastly in their billowing snow capes as they moved through the arctic dusk.

From time to time they came upon Russians who had been scattered at the height of the battle. Most of the Red army soldiers were alone.

Sometimes there was the crash of a hand grenade.

ON RUSSIAN SOIL

The Finns were hunting down the last remnants of 17,000 men, mostly Ukrainians, whom they defeated after a pitched battle lasting three days.

A long line of fresh troops moved up to new positions. Their advance patrols already had crossed into Russia.

A dozen Russian prisoners being escorted to the rear, were grinning—half in terror, half in relief. It was one of the ghastliest expressions I had ever seen.

I saw scores of Russians frozen into the positions where they were when they were killed. One clutched the door of a tank, another had a mess tin in his hand. A third held an unexploded grenade. A Finnish captain said the Finns were finding various fleeing bands of Soviet troops in the woods. He added:

"They are so cold they give themselves away by lighting fires. One of our patrols wiped out a complete company sitting around a fire last night."

ARMY WITHOUT FOOD

He explained that after 30 hours of fighting in which the Russians were out-flanked and caught unawares from behind, a Russian officer radiated frantically for help.

The Finns, who picked up the message, heard the Russian staff reply:

"You can win with the men you have."

Finally five Soviet relief companies were sent but never got past the Finns.

On the battlefield the Russians were almost out of food. Their horses which had no hay chewed the bark from pine trees. At last came the orders for a retreat. A closely packed line of tractors pulling guns and tanks began to move to the east. The Finns closed in and the Russian drivers were killed at their wheels. The Russian column still stands in one fantastic traffic jam. Not one vehicle got back to Russia.

Russia Has New Aviation Head

MOSCOW, Jan. 11 (AP)—Soviet Russia has a new commissar for her aviation industry.

The official news agency, Tass, announced that Mikhail M. Kaganovich had been relieved as commissar and "transferred to another post." His successor, M. Shakhurin, is a newcomer to high Russian officialdom.

(No reason was given for the change. Kaganovich, brother of Lazarus Kaganovich, a confidant of Joseph Stalin and administrator in several successive key positions, formerly was assistant commissar of the defense industry in which capacity he visited Washington in 1937.)

(As administrative head of the defense industry, Kaganovich planned assembly line production of planes and sought to step up and improve manufacture of tanks and guns.)

Stark Warns U. S. Allies May Lose

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP)—Admiral Harold R. Stark told Congress today that in considering the proposed $1,300,000,000 expansion of the fleet "we must face the possibility of an allied defeat" in the current European war.

Testifying before the House naval affairs committee, the chief of naval operations declared that in determining this country's defense needs, the possibility that the navies of the European democracies might be wiped out must be taken into account.

"Then we must measure the strength of any potential combinations of enemies," he added.

Stark declared the proposed program was "a compromise" and added the most important factor in its favor was its "moderation."

"COMPROMISE"

The "Compromise," he said, arose from the fact that a much larger program would be necessary to guarantee complete security for the United States.

Stark testified the Navy planned to begin construction, as soon as funds become available, on all presently authorized new and replacement ships as well as on the proposed authorized new and replacement ships as well as on the proposed expansion program, provided the latter is approved by Congress.

"We are leaving nothing on paper," he asserted.

U. S. Neutrality Act Irks British

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP)—Great Britain has protested to the United States that the neutrality act is discriminating against her ships, it was learned here.

The protest, understood to have been presented by the British embassy, was made on behalf of the Chamber of Shipping of London, an organization of shippers.

It complains that the neutrality act discriminates against British because it requires transfer of title to goods carried on British (or other belligerent) ships to certain portions of the globe, but does not require it with regard to neutral ships.

Denmark Prince To Fight Soviets

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 11 (INS)—Prince Aage of Denmark, cousin of King Christian, was reported to have resigned his commission as a colonel in the French Foreign Legion so he can join Finnish forces fighting against Russia.

Prince Aage, who was expected to marry the American heiress, Dorothy Gould, has already made application for a Finnish commission. It was stated, there was no disclosure as to his marriage plans.

Hore-Belisha Talks Tuesday

LONDON, Jan. 11 (INS)—Leslie Hore-Belisha, dismissed Secretary of State for War, will have an opportunity to state his case publicly on Tuesday next, it was announced today.

As a result of deliberations among leaders of the Conservative, Liberal and Labor parties, it was agreed that Hore-Belisha would be allowed to make a personal statement after question time in the House of Commons on Tuesday.

When he has finished, adjournment will be moved to permit general debate on the whole question of ministerial changes, during which it is anticipated that Prime Minister Chamberlain will give a full explanation.

Bridgewater Man At Finnish Front

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 11 (AP)—Word was received from Helsinki today that four American volunteers with two ambulances had arrived and been assigned to an undisclosed sector.

They were John F. Hasey of Bridgewater, Mass.; F. Lewis Bartlett of New York; and Robert H. Newman and William B. Mock of Chicago.

Britons Again Rout Air Raiders

at Newcastle-on-Tyne, the Fifth of North and the Humber and Thames estuaries.

One plane appeared over South Shields, on the south bank of the Tyne. One report said three raiders reached the region and six British fighters went up to chase them away.

Fragments of anti-aircraft shells fell in the streets of South Shields during 10 minutes of firing. Spectators over a wide area were endangered, but rushed out nevertheless to pick up the bits for souvenirs.

RETURNS TO ATTACK

Windows of a bus were shattered. After once being driven away, a raider circled and returned above South Shields and again was fired upon.

Three large black planes believed by observers to be German were chased to sea by British fighters over the southeast coast of Scotland.

East of London heavy anti-aircraft firing was heard in a Kent town about 1 p. m. (8 a. m. E. S. T.) and shell bursts high in the sky were seen in the direction of the Essex coast, north of Kent, although no planes were seen and no warning was sounded.

The planes, which drew the fire of the Essex coastal defenses, were flying eastward over the Thames estuary.

Sweden Offers Full Aid to Finns

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 11 (INS)—All possible material and spiritual aid to Finland was promised by King Gustav in a speech opening the Swedish Parliament.

"Sweden was and is conscious of her obligations to give the valiant Finnish people all the material and humanitarian help she can in view of her own position," he said.

Renew Fighting On West Front

PARIS, Jan. 11 (AP)—Return of clear weather has brought renewed fighting to light their way to their own lines.

Numerous clashes of small bodies of troops and several air battles were reported.

The Allied high command announced that two German planes were brought down within British-French lines yesterday. Other advances stated that a body of 50 French troops on a scouting expedition were set upon by a heavy

Mystery Man Said To Hold Dowd Key

A man said to be the mystery figure who met Mrs. John F. Dowd on her return to Boston Dec. 31, was to be questioned by Dist. Atty. Foley today in an effort to learn the last known hiding place of the fugitive ex-sheriff.

Authorities expressed utmost interest in clues pointing to Albany, N. Y., as Dowd's latest address—a development exclusively revealed in the Boston Evening American eight days ago.

That the trail leads definitely to Albany or a suburb was learned after detectives were ordered to the New York state capital, and a trap was set.

Meanwhile, authorities withheld complete details of their interrogation of William H. Jordan, 17, of the Riverway, Roxbury, a nephew of Dowd. He was questioned at the Dudley street police station.

The mystery figure, it was disclosed, was named by Jordan. Authorities said he told them this man had the woman described as Mrs. Dowd purged by railroad attendants on her arrival at the station New Year's Eve, and that the man also drove the woman to the home of Mrs. Dowd in Dorchester. Dist. Atty. Foley seeks to learn how contact was established with the woman said to have been Mrs. Dowd.

Jordan underwent a 20-minute examination by Foley and Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle.

Foley said that for the past five days Boston police officers have been seeking Dowd in the vicinity of Albany, N. Y. Lieut. John Watkins, Joseph Cunningham and other officers are working on definite clues, he said. He admitted he had no word from them yesterday but said he was prepared for developments from that quarter at any time.

Last week Foley had announced that he was having a search made for the former sheriff in Sandusky, Ohio.

Trooper to Tell Why He Slew Doll Girl

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., Jan. 11 (INS)—Benjamin Franklin, suspended state police corporal, may reach the witness stand at his murder trial today to tell how and why "in self-defense" he had to shoot to death Joan Stevens, 14-year-old "Nesquehoning" "doll girl," in a police prowl car last June 5.

With only three witnesses left to call, the commonwealth was expected to close its case early today against the husky, 200-pound admitted slayer of the frail, mine workman's daughter who talked of bandits and gun molls, but nightly took dolls to bed with her.

Thirteen witnesses have testified for the prosecution. They included Dr. John J. McDonald, of Nesquehoning, whose dramatic testimony caused Mrs. John Stevens, mother of the slain grade school pupil, to break down for the second time this week in Carbon County's tiny courtroom.

Mrs. Stevens, wept unrestrainedly as Dr. McDonald, testifying that he had brought Joan into the world, told how he was the first medical man to examine her body, riddled with eight bullets.

The defendant, being tried for second degree murder, has maintained he shot in self-defense when Joan threatened to "blow out his brains" with what later turned out to be a toy pistol. Franklin's story was corroborated by State Trooper Edward Swatki.

Woman, 100, Bares Secret of Long Life

MELBOURNE, Que., Jan. 11 (AP)—Mrs. John Gallup celebrated her 100th birthday today. Part of the secret of long life, she said, is "making up your mind you won't be sick."

A daughter, Mrs. Donald McNaughton, lives at Baldwinville, Mass., and a son, Augustus, at Bridgeport, Ct.

Fireman Injured In Charlestown

Fires broke out simultaneously in Charlestown and Dorchester today, causing severe injuries to a ladderman during a two-alarm blaze in a City sq. block and driving two families from a Savin Hill ave. house.

Stanley Caulfield, 35, of Ladder 18 suffered numerous face and head cuts as he was battling flames in a four-story building in Main st., Charlestown, near Division 13 police station.

Eight persons in the families of Austin Barnes and Francis Garry fled from flames which swept a two-and-one-half wooden house in Savin Hill ave., Dorchester. Damage at the Charlestown fire reached $5000 and the Savin Hill ave. blaze caused a loss of $5000.

Lodge Urges G.O.P. Drive

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11 (AP)—A demand that the Republican party take the "offensive" for the 1940 presidential campaign came today from Senator Lodge (R, Mass.).

He said he favored an early convention, perhaps in June, regardless of when the Democrats held theirs. Lodge, in an interview, withheld comment on presidential aspirants to the Republican presidential nomination and said "all then numbers aren't up yet."

WESTBROOK, Me., Jan. 11 (AP)—Return of the second half on a 1937 10 per cent wage cut today brought incomes of 2000 S. D. Warren Co. employees back to the previous high peak. The first half was restored a year ago.

Cape Cod Enjoys Feast of Eels

HARWICHPORT, Mass., Jan. 11 (AP)—Eels—fried, baked and broiled—are gracing the tables in Cape Cod homes these days since the discovery of an eel hideaway in Allen's harbor.

The comparatively small area where thousands were bedded down in the mud for hibernation was discovered by several fishermen.

In a short time they speared 150 pounds after boring holes in the ice. Some of the specimens measured three feet in length.

"better" as it progressed toward the explosion scene.

"We still have hopes for the men," said a company spokesman.

Two bodies were found against a slate fall a quarter of a mile from the 620 foot shaft, but there was no definite indication of the fate of the others.

More than 2000 persons gathered about the mouth of the mine greeted news of Salvati that rescue crews were progressing "in good shape" and that "the mine is not torn up at all as one would think from an explosion of this kind."

However, workers said they were handicapped considerably by dead air and had to build barricades as they went along to protect themselves.

RESCUERS HALFWAY

The shift coming out at 3 o'clock reported penetrating through rock and debris about halfway to the trapped men. Expectations were that it would be at least midday before the three blast-wrecked sections in the western part of the mine could be reached.

State mine department officials said the ventilating system had to be rebuilt as the crews moved ahead. The main ventilating system continued in operation but if G. Houtz, State chief engineer, reported chances "aim" that the trapped men had been able to build barricades and conserve what pure air remained in the affected area.

Occurring at 2:20 p.m. yesterday, the explosion at first was believed to be a slate fall and it was more than an hour before seriousness of the accident was known above ground.

Forty-seven coal diggers in an eastern section of the workings came out at 4 p.m. unaware there had been a blast.

Cause of the mishap was not determined immediately, although District Mine Inspector W. C.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisons out of the blood. They help most people pass about 2 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up middle of night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, head-aches and dizziness. Frequent or acute poisons with aching and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

GARDNER, FAMED BANDIT, IS SUICIDE Timber Sale Prospects Brighter

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 11—The man who staged a $175,000 train robbery, dodged dozens of bullets and outlasted the rigors of Alcatraz prison, lay in the morgue here today, cold in death of his own devising, his sole legacy to the world his message "Crime Does Not Pay."

These four words, summarizing his farewell, were the same as the title of a lecture he had delivered countless times during the last year at the Golden Gate Exposition here.

The sole request of Roy Gardner as he planned his own end was that his married daughter be shielded from the disgrace which finally drove him to make a lethal gas chamber out of his hotel room.

Police found his body in the bathroom of a modest hotel chamber, his face near a glass tumbler from which the identical fumes used in California's capital punishment chamber still rose in a thin wisp.

NOTORIOUS JAILBREAKER

In his last moments he penned the following message to the press.

"Please let me down as light as possible, boys. I have played ball with you all the way, and now you should pitch me a slow one and let me hit it."

"I am checking out because I am too old and tired, and don't care to continue the struggle."

"There are no love affairs or disappointments of any kind connected with this in any way. Just tired that's all."

"If I had realized what the future held for me, I would have 'checked out' in 1920, and saved my loved ones the disgrace and shame that they have had to endure these many years."

"Also, I would have dodged plenty of grief that I endured unnecessarily."

"All men who have to serve more than five years in prison are doomed, but they don't realize it. They kid themselves into the belief that they can 'come back,' but they can't. There is a barrier between the ex-convict and society that cannot be leveled."

"Every man on Alcatraz today would be better off if they would jump in the bay and start swimming to China, than you think I am wrong, just watch (Tom) Mooney or Beesmyer (Hollywood embezzler who just finished a nine year sentence) and see how they wind up."

"I did not decide to check out on the spur of the moment. In fact, I bought the pellets two months ago for this very purpose."

"Goodbye and good luck, boys, and please grant my last request."

"Sincerely Yours,

ROY GARDNER."

In 1920, Gardner first achieved notoriety when he was sentenced to 25 years in McNeil prison for an $80,000 mail wagon robbery at San Diego. While being taken to the prison he overpowered guards and escaped near Portland, Ore.

For 11 months he eluded police scattered along the West Coast meanwhile robbing a mail train of $175,000 in securities. He was finally seized as he sat in on a card game in Rosville, Cal.

Sentenced this time to 50 years in the same prison, he boastfully told the judge, "I'll escape again."

He did—near Castle Rock, Wash.

For five days he was at liberty, but was recaptured at Centralia, Wash.

But three months later, on Sept. 5, 1921, he raced to freedom in a sensational break in which a companion was slain and another wounded by guard's bullets.

RE-FOUR IS BREEZ

For two months police hunted him. He wrote to a San Francisco newspaper, asking that an enclosed pardon be forwarded to President Harding and promising to "be good."

But the promise—and liberty—were short lived for on Nov. 5, 1921, he tried to rob another mail train and was captured by the mail clerk.

Now the law cracked down hard as he was given a 25-year sentence to Leavenworth on his plea of guilty. Fourteen years he stayed at Leavenworth and was then transferred to dreaded Alcatraz island on his own request to be near his family.

The wife for whom he sacrificed less rigorous life at Leavenworth to be near quickly obtained an annulment of their marriage and he was returned to Leavenworth, from which he was released June 14, 1933.

A mild, grey haired man of 56, he turned reformer and appeared at the San Francisco World Fair, lecturing on the foolishness of crime and referring to Alcatraz prison as "Hellcatraz, the Rock of Despair."

Prospects for the sale of New England's $11,000,000 pile of hurricane timber brightened today as federal representatives took up negotiations to offer a new contract to the co-operative Northeastern Timber Marketing Association, newly organized for the world's biggest deal of its kind.

Assurance of an early "deal" was made by Truman L. Hyman, lumber wholesaler of Detroit, who stands at the head of the gigantic enterprise before a meeting of the New England Lumbermen's Association.

Engaged in soliciting more members for his cooperative venture, Hyman emphasized that while the deadline for a $10,000,000 down payment on the timber expired last night the deal is not off but that adjustments will be made in the purchase price of $24 per 1000 board feet after completion of the first year of a four and one-half year contract.

SERVICES HELD FOR MERRILL

Men high in the civic affairs of Massachusetts today honored the late John D. Merrill, political editor of the Boston Globe.

Funeral services at noon in Harvard Memorial Church, Harvard Yard, were attended by Gov. Saltonstall and former Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, together with scores of other prominent officials, educators and fellow newspapermen.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Leslie Glenn of Christ Church in Cambridge officiated. Private burial was in Lawrence.

Dog Quiz Seeks Mystery Woman

A mystery woman, said to be the sister of a stockholder in the Dighton dog track, was still sought today as a witness for a federal grand jury.

The jury resumed its probe of alleged income tax evasions in connection with track receipts as the search continued.

Adjournment was taken yesterday after the grand jurors had heard testimony by Henry J. Duffy of Atlantic st., North Quincy, employed in the office of the track and said to be a second cousin of Edmund L. Dolan, former Boston city treasurer.

Duffy, who is expected to be recalled, had been escorted by the grand jury to the office of U. S. Atty. Edmund J. Brandon with whom he was closeted for more than three hours on Tuesday.

(1) Right for you: Correct grind is very important in coffee. So be sure that you let the A&P clerk know the kind of coffee pot you use. For Regular Pot he'll give the coffee coarse grind; for Percolator, Medium; for Drip Pot, fine; for Vacuum Pot, extra fine.

(2) Flavor peak: These coffee roasters, developed and used only by A&P, seem actually to "think"! When the roast reaches the flavor peak the heat shuts off automatically—the coffee beans pour forth, flavor-packed for you.

(3) Magnificent Flavor is why every 7th family in America buys A&P Coffee. They get the full, fine flavor of fresh coffee, for A&P Coffee is sold in the flavor-packed bean, and not ground until the moment you purchase it.

NEW STAY URGED FOR R.R. LINE

One more move to keep service on the Winthrop Narrow Gauge railroad open after the abandonment "deadline" at midnight, Jan. 27, was made today by the new town committee in a conference with a bondholders' committee and company counsel.

In its appeal to the bondholders the Winthrop committee of seven was expected to make an offer of financial assistance to the railroad from the town if it would maintain service a little longer. This course has been proposed at several town meetings on the matter.

The proposition is doomed for failure, however, unless all parties interested are in complete agreement, it was understood. Faced by the obstacle of a U. S. district court order that the railroad cease operations at the hour designated, it was considered unlikely that any move would be made to modify the court ruling.

POST NOTICES TODAY

Under the ruling made by Judge George C. Sweeney, notices of the closing were to be posted today in each of the stations, buses and ferries of the railroad.

Judge Sweeney extended the hour for closing beyond that asked for by Atty. L. Cushing Goodhue of the Narrow Gauge in order to permit arrangements for substitute transportation service or to permit arrangements for the purchase of the property.

Frank C. Gorman, counsel of the former Winthrop transportation committee which advocated a legislative act to have the Narrow Gauge property taken over by the Boston Elevated, said today that only a modification by the court can defer the closing now.

LITTLE HEADWAY

Mesmerized, little headway has been made in planning a substitute service for the railroad. No action had been taken today by the selectmen on the suggestion that permits be issued for temporary service to one or more bus companies to provide service to and from Revere and East Boston.

Under the proposal that the El take over the service the question has arisen in Winthrop as to whether commuters would have to walk to the Beachmont or the Orient Heights stations to make connections for Boston.

The railroad in its latest move had on file in federal district court a petition seeking the appointment of an appraiser to determine whether the assets of the road were sufficient to satisfy the claims of the first bondholders.

Members of the new Winthrop citizens' committee are Frederick Crocker, chairman; Town Clerk Donald S. McLeod, secretary; Herbert S. Avery, attorney; Walter G. Baker, chairman of the board of selectmen; Oliver H. Green, chairman of the board of assessors; H. Dwight Hall, insurance man; and Channing Howard, civil engineer.

WELCOME TO BOSTON—Delegations of boys and girls from Greater Boston organizations greet Maxine Davis, author and foreign correspondent, on arrival at South Station today. Miss Davis will be the main speaker at "Youth Speaks," dramatized forum at Faneuil Hall tomorrow night.

GRANDMOTHER JOINS ANTI-WAR CRUSADE

A grandmother whose 26-year-old grandson is her only support today joined the National Legion of Mothers of America which seeks to keep the United States out of Europe's war.

"I am joining the Legion of Mothers," writes Mrs. Ella Langford, 9 Charles st., Lynn, "because I have a grandson, 26 years old, who is my support. Like all mothers, I don't want my grandson to be sent to fight on foreign soil. Keep our boys here in America so that they may build a strong democratic government and maintain their freedom and their families."

Mrs. Dorothy Woodbury of 232 Massachusetts ave., Boston writes: "I have two sons and although they are too young for war yet—aged 13 and 14—I would consider it an honor and privilege if you will accept my name in your organization. Also my mother, Mrs. Evelina A. Richardson, aged 76, would like to have her name added. Please God such a worthy cause shall endure as 'A Book of Ages' in this torn world."

Mrs. Mary Sullivan, 259 Silver st., South Boston:

"I have been reading about the campaign to keep our American boys out of war. I have a boy who is 21 years of age and he is all I have."

"I know if we all stick together we will win. If there is anything I can do to be of service in this good cause, kindly let me. I am sure there are many in South Boston who feel as I do. I wish the Legion of Mothers every success and hope you will accept my application."

wealth ave.

"Please put me down as a member of the Legion of Mothers. I have two sons and am a member of the War Mothers. No more sending of our American sons to fight other nations' battles. We women can be heard if we get strong enough with our demands."

Mrs. Grace Berrio, 1281 Washington st., South Braintree:

"I am very glad somebody has started things going. It should have been done long ago. I have four sons, 27, 26 and 21, and one 12 years of age. Let's get going in earnest."

Mrs. Hannah M. Connors of Milton, one of the most active of the 50 Patrol Mothers of the National Legion of Mothers, has announced that the American Mothers' Neutrality League, an affiliate of the Legion of Mothers, which she heads as president, will hold its first anniversary dance at Hotel Somerset, Feb. 22.

She also announced that Friday meetings, suspended during Yuletide, will be resumed today at the Parker House.

Boston Youth Hail Author

A rousing welcome from Boston youth greeted Miss Maxine Davis, foreign correspondent, author and champion of the cause of youth, upon her arrival at South Station today from Washington.

Mrs. Davis, who is scheduled to address the Youth Agencies Council tomorrow night at Faneuil Hall, was welcomed by newsmen, boot-blacks, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and other youths of agencies supported by the 1840 Community Fund.

The program is a pre-campaign activity of the Community Fund drive, which starts Jan. 22.

CORNELIA OTIS SKINNER COMING TO WILBUR

'Edna His Wife' In Repertory

Boston is assured of at least one Broadway valentine, and there is a possibility of a second winging its way here.

On the drama schedule for Feb. 19 at the Wilbur Theater is Cornelia Otis Skinner for one week's engagement in a repertory of three of her best-known solo dramas.

Her Monday evening opening performance will be in "Edna His Wife," which, with the Tuesday night's "The Loves of Charles II," will be sponsored by the Boston League of Women Voters.

In "Edna His Wife," Miss Skinner's own adaptation of Margaret Ayer Barnes' best-selling novel of the same name, the star will portray, in addition to the central figure, Edna Losser, over a period of 40 years, seven other characters in the 11 scenes.

In "The Loves of Charles II," which spans the lusty Restoration years between 1649 and 1685, Miss Skinner portrays six women whose lives closely touched that of "The King of France."

Miss Skinner's "Empress Eugenie" will be offered only at the Saturday matinee.

Announcement that Ernest Hemingway's first full-length play, "The Fifth Column," will have its world premiere in New Haven on Friday evening, Jan. 26, gives the guess that the Theater Guild may bring it here for a pre-Broadway workout.

Fanchot Tone, Frances Farmer and Lenore Ufrie have the leading roles. Benjamin F. Glazer has prepared the acting version. Lee Strasberg is directing. The settings have been designed by Howard Bay.

Renee to Star In Globe Show

The glamour, they do say, is thick enough to slice when Renee is in the vicinity. Renee Tomlinson opens a week's engagement at the Globe, heading a traveling road company of 63 performers.

The three complete burlesque show daily will include an additional program of feature films. Tomorrow night's evening show will offer the regular weekly attraction—an amateur radio contest.

Postpone Shubert Opening to Jan. 23

So that their opening will not conflict with the Helen Hayes opening on the night of Jan. 22 producers Gertrude Macy and Frank Gilkey are setting back the premiere of "Two For the Show" at the Shubert one night.

It is officially announced that "Two For the Show" will open Tuesday, Jan. 23, and play for five evenings. To fill out the night performances that week, however, an extra matinee will be given on Friday.

Modern Glamour Girls

By George Clarke

"There's glamour in brains . . ."

NEITHER has beauty to rave about . . . neither sets styles, or causes one furore after another with new hair-dos, new kinds of hats, or exotic pets. Each has been married but once, and has kept the husband she started out with. Both, when not before the public, live quietly in country homes, surrounded by such homely comforts as thick cream in the morning, fresh vegetables out of their own gardens, and, when winds howl around the eaves, an open fire to dream by.

Each was an "ugly duckling" who came to fame the hard way, by honest, exacting devotion to the art of acting. The two of them are the uncrowned queens of the American stage, principal female exponents of the dramatic art: Ladies and gentlemen, may we present—

Katharine Cornell and Helen Hayes, two of the nation's most notable glamour girls!

Curiously, both came to high estate by playing two roles, one each, in which the character depicted was, more or less, a glamour girl. Helen Hayes in "Coquette," and Katharine Cornell in Michael Arlen's "The Green Hat"—and each was an unforgettable performance.

Helen Hayes is a little, half-brazen Southern belle, trifling with the love of a boy . . . and he kills himself.

Cornell is a bold, brash, sensitive and brave girl, Iris Marsh, cursed with the wildness of her forbears the "Mad Marshes," who, in the last act climax of the Arlen drama ended her perplexities by driving her great, powerful car into a tree.

It was the beginning for each. To know how glamorous Helen Hayes really is, one has to know her well. Her's is a triumph of soft intelligence, of gentle understanding. She is as kind, and as lovely as she seems to be, as sweet and simple as the roles she plays best.

La Cornell is darkly beautiful, row, sleek and fine.

The charm of each is found most completely in their intellectual honesty, in the quality of intelligence each possesses.

Katharine Cornell's first recollection is of being an "ugly duckling." Of this she says:

"As a child I remember my unhappiness as my family's friends would shake their heads and mourn: 'She's nice girl, but it's a pity she's so ugly.' Then my grandmother would say 'at least she's not repulsive!'"

And in 1923, when she had her first stage role, four words in "Eusibido," a critic wrote, "She is far from plain, but, we dare say, it was never necessary for her Buffalo folks to keep her away from the water for fear her beauty would set the river afire."

TEN years later that same critic, writing of her performance in "St. Joan," probably the best of all of her roles, was comparing her to the great Elanora Duse, and was writing that "she is too beautiful for the part, if anything."

Such was the change wrought in a few short years as, perhaps, the critics and public began to see the light of her soul shining through her facial imperfections. Now, she is, concededly, one of the stage's most beautiful women—as those who saw her here in "No Time for Comedy" can readily attest.

And her's is an unearthly glamour, made up of a deep, soothing voice, deep-sunk flashing eyes, red, red lips, high cheek bones, a good figure—but why go beyond her mind!

She is happily married to Guthrie MacClintic, who is probably the stage's most distinguished play director, and he directs all of her plays. She is now at the head of her own producing organization ization as America's first actress-manager.

Helen Hayes' first recollection as a public performer was as a child of four when she was to appear at a concert in Washington, her home town, in a ballet costume for a "pas de deux." It was a failure. She couldn't dance before all of those people, and fled to the wings.

GUTHRIE MACCLINTIC

At six she was a member of the Columbia stock company, at eight played in "The Prince Chap," followed by "Lord Fauntleroy," and at the end of that season of stock, went to New York, where Lew Fields engaged her for a series of reproductions, writing parts in for the tiny little tot from Washington.

All of which is by way of showing that here, if ever, is a trouper from the very first word.

She played in this, that and the other thing, including "Dear Brutus," before, at last, she met Jed Harris and found that eccentric genius in the throes of producing "Coquette." She was engaged, and the play was a smash hit overnight—the third hit for Harris in a row, he having made a fortune with "Broadway," followed by "The Royal Family," and then "Coquette." Following came "The Front Page"—and, for a time, at least, he was credited with possessing at least $3,000,000.

Now, despite the fact that "Our Town" won last year's Pulitzer prize, he is practically broke . . . but that's the way with genius always.

But this is a story of Helen Hayes, not of Harris, and, of course, of Charles MacArthur, her famous husband.

"Coquette" was on the road, and making money, when she informed Harris that she was about to become a mother, and would have to leave the show. Others in the cast sued to force Harris to replace her with another actress so the tour could continue, but he cancelled the bookings, and won the suits on the basis of the "act of God" clause in their contracts . . . and so here is the famous "Act of God baby."

It was inevitable, of course,

HELEN HAYES
In Victoria Regina

that she would go to Hollywood, MacArthur having made so signal a success there, and she made two or three pictures, one of which was outstanding, "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," which her husband wrote. It was a beautiful performance, and marked her retirement from the screen.

Since, she has only appeared in plays on Broadway, and has no way to return to pictures.

For the last two years she has toured the country in "Victoria Regina" for the Theater Guild, a tremendous play in which she depicted Queen Victoria from girlhood to the grave. Now she is soon due here in a new play by her husband and his equally famous collaborator, Ben Hecht, called "Ladies and Gentlemen." It will be at the Colonial the night of Jan. 22.

And all of which is told here to show that glamour is more than skin deep.

And if you didn't know!

IN HIS FIRST public address since appointment to the United States Supreme Court, Attorney-General Frank Murphy contributed much to the general conviction that his appointment was a wise one.

Addressing the national conference for Palestine, which is deeply concerned by widespread persecution of Jews in Central Europe and is striving to preserve the Holy Land as a Jewish national home, Mr. Murphy stressed the great part religious and racial tolerance has played in the building of America.

JUSTICE MURPHY

The American creed of tolerance, he said, "for a century and a half has sustained civil liberty and representative government in this land."

And ascribing the present disruption of peace in Europe to the "professional hate-mongering" of tyrannical and intolerant philosophies which are repugnant to Americans, he declared:

"American democracy must look for its defense to the wisdom of the people and their determination not to be led on the paths that have taken other people to Communism and Fascism."

There is something extraordinarily hopeful and wholesome in this spectacle of a great American, about to assume a position of great power and influence in the affairs of the American people, giving such evidence of faith in fundamental Americanism.

Elsewhere, those who have come recently to power in the affairs of many other nations have consistently and ruthlessly stripped the people of both rights and authority.

But here is an American coming into one of the highest places of authority, and voicing the hope that the United States will never accept or condone "the group hatreds which destroyed Europe's peace."

Mr. Murphy has displayed a profound understanding of the American principles of justice and humanity which support the great court of which he is soon to become a member.

SEA SERPENTS AGE and grow whiskers. At least, the maritime monster of Victoria, B. C., does.

Canadian fishermen, hastening to shore, report: "He was only 40 feet away. His head resembled a cross between that of a walrus and a camel. He had a long—very long—beard."

Perhaps this is the frolicsome fellow that used to be seen off Cape Cod and Nantucket Island.

Perhaps he has migrated to northerly, Pacific waters. But we are not going to allow ourselves to worry and lose sleep. Wherever he is, we wish him well.

With our unmatched recreational resources and established reputation as the winter and summer playground of the nation, we are sufficient unto ourselves.

We no longer require the attractions of a sea serpent, with or without whiskers, to lure visitors.

THE FEMALE WAISTLINE—where is it? Josephine, wife of Napoleon, placed it a few inches under the armpits. During the theatrical reign of Sarah Bernhardt it dropped somewhat below the hips.

Now, if the WPA has its way, there will be no more doubts. Female waistlines are to be "regimented" and made to "stay put."

With the co-operation of the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Home Economics, the WPA is training relief workers to take 59 measurements and thus to visualize the "composite woman."

Of course, the whereabouts of the waistline does happen to be one of the oldest and most baffling riddles about femininity.

But the WPA can be trusted to tackle it courageously.

It ought not to be more difficult than raising trees in deserts, teaching beavers to build dams where men, not beavers, want them, and solving unemployment problems with tap dancing lessons.

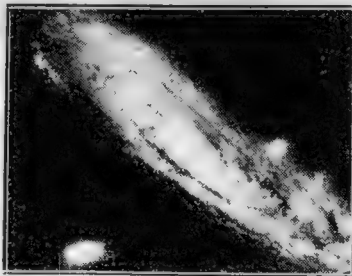

NEW ENGLAND LEADS other parts of the country in many important industries.

The shoe industry is a convincing example.

During November, our six States produced 8,865,994 pairs of shoes, a gain of more than 14 per cent over the number made in the corresponding month in 1933.

Elsewhere, from New York State to California, the increase was a mere 6 per cent.

More and more, manufacturers are turning to wake up to the fact that our better class of citizens are not only laboring under natural resource shortages but also under a shortage of skilled labor.

Star Dust

THROUGH the great telescopes we see . . . the mists of spiral nebulae . . . Like blazing Catherine wheels they whirl . . . their glories to the skies unfurl . . . and countless fiery suns rehearse . . . the pageant of the universe.

From such far-distant bodies must . . . our earth appear a speck of dust . . . Yet before each of us their lies . . . our daily work and enterprise . . . with problems more important far . . . than may obtain on any star . . . while for our earth there seems to be . . . some blind but glorious destiny.

Human Side of News

By EDWIN C. HILL

THOMAS E. DEWEY'S get-away speech, in which he invoked a new and fervid belief in the high destiny of America, was good psychological medicine regardless of what one may think of Mr. Dewey's candidacy.

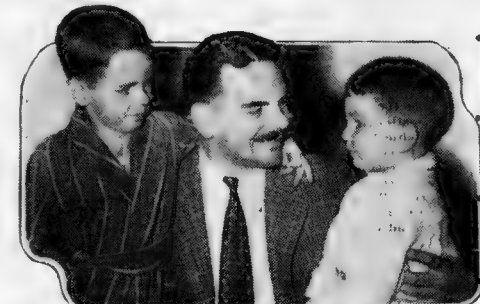

It also helped to warm up an interesting year-end discussion and appraisal of assets and liabilities, mainly directed to Mr. Dewey's challenge of defeatism in the national outlook.

Rounding up the exchanges, a few magazines and a timely book or two, in which the editorial railbirds clock the 1939 run-around, we noted several drifts or attitudes pertinent to Mr. Dewey's attention-getter.

ONE IS that the unhappy state of most of the rest of the world has shocked us into a realization that we have something worth believing in, over here. Another observation is that these chastening years seem to have made us more tough-minded than we used to be.

In my view, Mr. Dewey could have brought forward no more important question than the degree of our belief in what we are presumed to believe in America, and who does, or doesn't do the believing.

I believe it was Heraclitus who offered as a method of polemics the statement of a possibly absurd extreme as the beginning of clarification. A hard-bitten, cynical friend states for me the current issue of national faith as follows:

THOMAS E. DEWEY WITH SONS, TOMMY AND JOHNNY
He Invokes New Belief in High Destiny of America

"We in America are supposed to believe in democracy, labor, education and religion, taking a few of cultural and institutional commitments at random. What happens? Democracy doesn't really believe in democracy."

"We are suckers for foreign titles and decorations. Any adonoidal princeling from overseas can overwhelm us with a sense of our own social inferiority. We don't want equality; we want privilege."

"The average millionaire, who could buy a thousand fight tickets, will cadge one from his friend, the sporting editor, if he can—just to be one up on the boys at the club. That's human."

I don't defend my friend's gloomy analysis. But I think it is helpful in breaking down Mr. Dewey's general statement of faith into a few of its more important components.

I believe we have today a heritage more worth believing in than that of any other people. I believe that we have been ferreant in that belief.

I hope that in the national forum, Mr. Dewey's thesis will be winnowed down into minute specified detail and that thereby we will find the new fervor of belief which Mr. Dewey extols.

MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31—I spent a delightful hour with Miss Elizabeth Searcy in her studio in Dupont Circle. She has painted a great deal in Newport, R. I., New York and the South. It is evident in looking at her work that she has a great feeling for her home city, Memphis, Tenn.

There are five interiors of rooms which she painted at Roosevelt House in New York City some years ago, and which seemed to me to belong together in some museum. They are beautifully executed and correct in detail and should, of course, be kept together, preferably where people who are not apt to visit and yet want to know the looks of the house where Theodore Roosevelt was born and spent the early years of his life.

Some of Miss Searcy's etchings are exquisite, but her water colors of gardens were to me the loveliest of all. I hope that she will have an opportunity while here to paint some of the beautiful gardens in and around this city.

THE Jackson Day dinner, which we all attended Monday night, was nearly the last of the season. The night was devoted to the raising of money for the National Council and city organizations. The dinner was a success.

the wherewithal to run the Democratic Party machine.

I am hoping that the women some day will have as well established a day as the men have. They made a beginning last year, but it was only a beginning. I feel sure that they can be as successful as the men if they begin their plans far enough ahead.

Certainly the Democratic Party should be able to swing two national elections a year to raise money for national work, besides the days devoted to State, county and city organizations. The party is important to the nation.

With my voice teacher, Mrs. Elizabeth von Hesse, I attended the Women's National Press Club luncheon. Mrs. von Hesse gave us all a delightful talk and a demonstration lesson on voice control. Everyone seemed to have a good time and I am sure all of us learned something.

Mrs. von Hesse stresses developing our ability to hear, which reminds me that I have been wanting to tell you for a long time about a musical project and in the District of Columbia, which I think well worth while.

The National Committee for Music Appreciation is sponsoring the establishment in the public library of the District, of a free circulating library of symphonic records.

THE NUCLEUS will be top symphonies which a Washington newspaper recently distributed. Ten of these sets, covering the work of ten great composers, are being presented by the Committee to the library, so that thousands of people who cannot afford to attend concerts or public performances can hear this music in their homes.

I hope this may be followed by a similar project in many other cities, for the things which we hear constantly and which become a part of us are the things which make us what we are.

JOE MARTIN AVOIDS F. D. R.'s TRAP

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 In his last two messages to Congress President Roosevelt baited the Republicans into an applause trap. He stated something which elicited vigorous applause from them, only to follow it with a reverse punch line which left them sheepish. Last week Joe Martin, the G. O. P. Republican minority leader, was on the joint committee which escorted Roosevelt into the chamber. Roosevelt smiled and warned Martin: "Don't let your boys go out on the limb again." "They won't," Martin assured. When Roosevelt talked about reducing the budget, Martin sat quietly—and watched his Republican colleagues cheer and applaud.

LESSON: Laura Ingalls the flirter, went to the Dempsey-Vanderbilt bar after the Miami air meet and discussed her recent suspension. "I was grounded because of an ordinance which forbids the dropping of advertising matter from planes over the Capitol in Washington," she said, "but I'd do it again." "Haven't you learned your lesson?" she was asked. "Well," she confessed, "I learned only that there's a legal difference between advertising soap—and advertising peace."

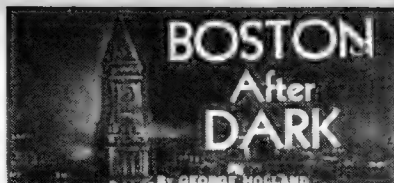

DANGER: Despite the many arrests of suspects, the Gypsy Rose Lee jewel robbery still is unsolved. Gypsy had worn those jewels safely when she worked in burlesque and lived downtown. Then when she had the jewels insured by Lloyd's she listed her profession as "actress." Lloyd's discovered she was the strip-teaser and immediately doubled the rate to 3 per cent. And so Gypsy decided to show 'em. She moved to the Murray Hill sector, almost next door to J. P. Morgan—and was robbed.

ACHIEVEMENT: Howard Lindsay, co-author of "Life With Father" and who plays the leading role, is one of the few successes into that field. When Lindsay was four his mother brought him to Atlantic City to live with an uncle—a newspaper publisher who was a very practical man. If an advertiser didn't pay his bills the publisher would take it out in trade. When an election teacher and a lightning calculator couldn't pay Howard studied these subjects.

YOUTH: Alexander Woolcott went to San Francisco to meet Kathleen Norris. Mrs. Norris swept across the railroad station to meet him, as Woolcott described it, "like a frigate in full sail." When they returned to the Norris home the novelist introduced Alec to her 7-year-old niece, who warned him: "Dorothy is coming." "And who is Dorothy, my dear?" asked the visitor. "Dorothy," the little girl replied, "is the friend I hate."

LAURA INGALLS

THE FIRE-SPENDING DAYS of the late 1920s are being recalled this January in Miami, and the Boston singers, Newell and Steger, are heroes of one little episode that has the playboy-set talking. One of the popular bucks of Florida's cafe society is a Jorge Sanchez of New Orleans. Sanchez is a Louisiana sugar baron, and was very friendly with Seymour (Colonel) Weiss. We met both gentlemen in New Orleans in 1938 when they were outstanding economic royalists. Since then, Weiss' status has changed considerably. He was indicted by the government on a matter of income tax, and an investigation of his inheritances from the empire of Huey Long has been giving him no little bother.

SENIOR SANCHEZ HAS HAD continued good fortune, however, and the other evening he must have been feeling sorry for his friend, Seymour. Seymour, for one or another reason, cannot pry himself away from sultry New Orleans this winter, and it's not all fun in ole N'Orleans. Well, Seymour's temporary misfortune worked out to the decided advantage of Messrs. Newell and Steger, who, in three consecutive seasons of work at the Boston Coconut Grove's Melody Lounge made a slew of friends. Senior Jorge Sanchez was listening to the boys as they sang their repertory in the Miami Beach Paddock Club bar. Then the big idea struck the thoughtful Senior. He negotiated a long distance telephone call, and in no time at all his friend, "Colonel" Weiss was on the other end. For more than an hour, while the bill for the call was mounting merrily, Newell and Steger sang for their distant audience of one, "Colonel" Weiss, the onetime boss of the bayous. The gossip is that Sanchez expressed his gratitude with a hundred dollar bill, or C-note. A Miami newspaper thought the story worth featuring.

CHATTER: They say the Day Sisters, Fern and June, were the non-political bits of the Boston Jackson Day dinner. Sisters in reality (few of the sister-teams are), the youngsters dance like the deuce—we were assured from all sides. Jimmy O'Keefe missed Joe Cronin when the Red Sox skipper hit town the other day, and the restaurant man has been sad ever since. Here's a bona fide case of mutual devotion which has few parallels. Jimmy will warm up with some of the Sox rookies in Hot Springs again this year if Manager Cronin stops off at the Arkansas resort before Sarasota.

WALTER DONAHUE of the dancing Donahues of Charlestown, has scored heavily as the tap-dancing master of ceremonies at the Royal Palms, one of the best nightclubs in Miami. A Miami columnist gives Walter a warm greeting and praises him for refraining from trading on the reputation of his late brother, the great Jack Donahue. The columnist, in identifying Jack, ends by asking: "Remember 'Sally' and 'Sunny'?" Sure. But Jack Donahue hadn't met Zig-feld when "Sally" was produced. Marilyn Miller, Walter Catlett and Leon Erroll were the stars. Jack was working in a show called "Angel Face."

GREER GARSON

CHICAGO, Jan. 11 Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was busier than a three-ring circus today swapping lemons in midstream. First came the news that Greer Garson goes into "Pride and Prejudice" instead of Norma Shearer. And right on the heels of this Joan Crawford telephoned on her way through Chicago en route to Hollywood, to tell me that she will do "Susan and God," which was ready and supposedly set for Miss Garson. To add to the complications, Norma Shearer is on her way to New York to see Sidney Kingsley's "The World We Make," which she makes next in place of "Pride and Prejudice."

Understand the reasons for the change in casting plans are very simple: Hunt Stromberg, who will produce both "Pride and Prejudice" and "Susan and God," has both pictures ready to start. It was decided some time ago between Hunt and Norma that "Pride and Prejudice" was a better picture for Miss Garson than it was for Norma. Rather than postpone it until she finishes "Susan and God," the plan now is to make both pictures at the same time. If you ask me—everybody should be happy, since Joan Crawford seems a much better choice for "Susan and God" than Miss Garson.

NORMA SHEARER

SNAPSHOTS OF CHICAGO AND HOLLYWOOD: Had luncheon with Townsend Netherer at the very attractive Pump Room at the Ambassador Hotel. Saw Marge Crane, Albert Lasker's daughter and Gertrude Netherer, who leaves for the Coast Friday. Later went to call on T. in his office at the Boston store. Alice Faye passed through town yesterday and her fan club was on hand to greet her.

THE COLONY CLUB entertained our troupe and Marcel Lamaze came through with some of his famous cuisine. Frank Faye put on a floor show that was a riot. He introduced all the company and has never been as funny. I haven't had a drink in months; Mecca Graham and I went to supper with Clifton Webb and his mother; Susan Kaaren and Sainey Plackner all made up and happy again, dining at Sandi's; Bette Davis is now in her new house in the Los Feliz district.

CLARA BOW has checked out of the Mayo Clinic but will rest a week before heading home; the Three Stooges leave Hollywood Monday to open in Chicago on the 19th, with Gloria Dickson, Cliff Edwards, the Brewster Twins, Alex D'Arcy, Linda Ware and Marjorie Bell in their troupe.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

NERVOUSLY "Rosy" Ralph fingered his racing program. Lady Luck had been cruel of late, and "Rosy's" outlook was getting as chilly as a landlady's smile.

Four horses were coming out for the fourth. The first three races on the card had dealt "Rosy" as many blanks. But he was not a man to be easily discouraged. He cast a practiced eye on the entries in the approaching spasm.

Suddenly he stiffened: Always a notorious hunch player, "Rosy" had noticed something. Actually, his attention centered on the fourth horse, and his mental machinery commenced a series of hand-grips and backflips.

Here it was the fourth day of the racing meet, the fourth race was coming up, he was down to his last four dollars, horse number four was named Four Spot and, to banish any possible misgivings, the "tote" board showed that the animal's odds were four to one.

"Rosy" was not excessively greedy. He reasoned a four-dollar wager would return him only four times as much. But a win would insure him against punching that other hole in his belt for at least four more days.

The horses were now at the post and, without wasting more precious time, "Rosy" jostled his way to the nearest betting window. At the two-dollar winwicket, he impatiently waited for the chump in front to get his ticket on number seven. He even felt sorry for the misguided daffydil, but one couldn't give way to tears in this game.

THE CLANG of the bell startled "Rosy" out of a blissful reverie. The horses were off. But "Rosy" had not the slightest concern about the outcome.

In fact, he closed his eyes. He could bear the roar of the crowd as the horses tore down the stretch in front of the stand.

His eyes still closed, he knew now that the race was over, for the shouting had dwindled to a hum of mixed voices, some happy, some excited, some angry.

People were beginning to push past him as he leaned against the supporting post of the grandstand.

So "Rosy" opened his eyes to feast them on the win ticket of his fleet number four.

He gaped in amazement.

Four spot, fourth horse in the fourth race, on which "Rosy" had four dollars on this fourth day of the meet, had finished FOURTH.

LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

HALF your troubles come from expecting the other fellow to live your life for you—and blaming him when he can't and won't.

You must learn to live alone. There are the six most difficult words in life to understand or accept. Most of us never do accept them.

Instead, we waste our years, break our hearts and raise Cain generally, trying to duck or outsmart them to prove they aren't true.

But they ARE TRUE. They are the bottom of all truth. And you'll never learn more about life, or succeed in doing anything with it, unless and until you have mastered this first lesson.

You must learn to live alone.

THAT doesn't mean living in ISOLATION. OR WITHOUT people. It simply means FACING and ACCEPTING the fact that you are a SOLITARY individual. . . . that your only real life is the life WITHIN yourself. . . . that no one else can or should be expected to live that life FOR you.

Life is a one man job and by no possible contriving can you make it anything else.

No matter how many people you know and love, no matter how many know and alone. At the busiest moment of your career you are as solitary as you were at the moment of your birth, as you will be at the moment of your death.

"Men are spirits clad in veils—"

"Man by man was never seen—"

All our striving somehow fails.

"To lift that which lies between."

Never were there truer words and you'll save yourself endless misery if you'll accept them immediately and get the misery over with.

LIFE was given you to live. . . . to live proudly, passionately, abundantly. If you fall down on the job, you'll get the works exactly like any other slacker.

Nor does it matter how good you've been to your family, or how faithful to your boss. IF YOU'VE TRETTED YOURSELF LIKE A WORKMAN, YOU'LL BE TREATED LIKE ONE IN RETURN.

You must learn to LIVE. You must learn to LIVE ALONE. And if once you have the courage to tackle that job, you'll never again complain that your days lack drama or diversity. FOR THE HUMAN WHO HAS LEARNED THE TRICK OF LIVING IN HIMSELF HAS THE WORLD BY THE TAIL. NO FOOLING!

LEAP YEAR'S first large debutante dance will take place tomorrow evening when Louise Anne Sargent, willowy blonde daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sargent, makes her formal curtsy at a party at her parents' home in the Fenway . . .

Before the several hundred guests arrive for dancing Louise will entertain a group of her intimate friends and the ushers at a dinner party . . . Her cousin, Daniel Cheever, who graduated from Harvard last June, heads the ushers, and his sister, Jane, one of last year's popular debbs, will be a guest at the ushers' dinner . . .

Cynthia Burrage, the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cameron Burrage, and Harvard boys' nomination for glamour girl, will also be a guest at the ushers' dinner . . . Incidentally, being a glamour girl is not just having a face that catches the photographer's eye . . . For though Cynthia is lovely to look at, with a peaches and cream complexion and fair hair, she is a charming conversationalist, an accomplished rider and an expert mallet wielder . . . in fact she played on the all-girls' polo team organized on the North Shore several summers ago as one of the few feminine polo teams in the country . . .

Sister Debs to Attend

OTHER SISTER DEBS of Louise who will attend the dinner at the Sargents' home include her cousins, Gloria Coolidge and Betsy Neilson; Violet Brooks, Nancy Eliot, Dorothy Gannett, Anne Galt Grant, Christina Lowell, Elvina Richard, Sally Russell, Jean Saltonstall, Gertrude Shaw, Nancy Vogel, Mary Whitney and Mary Wigglesworth . . . Post debbs Joan Dick and Gail Neilson will also be in the feminine contingent at dinner and in addition to the ushers the following young men will attend—David Clark, Fulton Cutting, Herbert Tuckerman, Edward Allis, David Cheever, George Nichols, Augustus Soule, Howard Turner and Antonio Villa . . .

Eleanor Horsey of New York will be Louise's house guest for the party . . . A talented pianist, Louise has studied in Vienna and Italy and spent several winters at the Convent of the Assumption in Paris . . . Her scrapbook of debutante activities includes memories of a number of gay parties given for her . . . When she returned from Europe last spring her parents gave a luncheon at their country home in South Natick and on Armistice Day she shared honors with three cousins at a debutante ball at the Women's Republican Club . . .

SEEN ABOUT TOWN . . . Mrs. Marc Peter, Jr., at the Architects Club lecture Tuesday evening in a vivid striped lame jacket over a bright red gown, an attractive upsy hair-do and diamond and pearl earrings . . . Cynthia Sortwell, one of last season's glamour girls, fingering notes on English literature with ink stained hands as she crammed a bit of study into her luncheon hour in the Radcliffe cafeteria the other day . . . She's a freshman over there and among her classmates are Elizabeth Fish, Harriet Bundy, Diana Fraser, Anne Knowles and Helen Merriman, all debbs of last winter . . .

Currens-Chmielinski Bridal Saturday

HELENKA CHMIELINSKI of Brookline will become the bride of Dr. James H. Currens Saturday morning in St. Aidan's Church, Brookline, followed by a wedding breakfast at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Chmielinski . . . The bride's sister, Marysia, will be her only attendant and Dr. Robert Evans of Seattle, Washington, the best man . . .

Following a honeymoon in the South, Dr. Currens and his bride will live in Rochester, Minn., where he will be associated with the Mayo Clinic . . . He completes his internship at the Boston City Hospital tomorrow, and tomorrow evening the doctors at the hospital will give a shower and pre-wedding party for the bridal couple . . .

BEING A POST DEB doesn't mean sitting "on the shelf" for Jane Cheever who is busy sandwiching all sorts of social activities in between her studies at Radcliffe. A popular deb of last winter, she will be one of the guests at the debut dance for her cousin, Louise Sargent, tomorrow evening at the Sargent residence in the Fenway.

Youth in Faneuil Hall Forum

Youth will have a chance to speak for itself at a forum for young people in Faneuil Hall tomorrow evening. This event, presented by the Youth Agency Council, will be one of the outstanding pre-campaign activities of the Community Federation of 1940. Modern boys and girls will take the platform to discuss their own ideals and philosophies before a large public audience.

Additional sponsors for the affair include Frederick Cameron Church, president of the Boys' Club of Boston, and Mrs. Church; Oliver Wolcott, representing the Boy Scouts, Inc.; Frederick Deane, William D. Delicious Lamb Cuts

By MARTHA LEE

In extending your knowledge of economy cuts of meat, as many homemakers are doing these days, don't overlook lamb. If you are accustomed to think of lamb in terms of rib or loin chops and roast leg, you may not realize that there are many other delicious lamb cuts which are less demanded largely because homemakers do overlook them.

The cuts from the forequarter of lamb are among the economy portions. They are fine in flavor and are tender, as are all cuts of lamb. But some of them contain bones which are troublesome in serving. This is true of the lamb shoulder and breast. But it is an easy matter to have these bones removed. When the bones are removed from the shoulder of lamb, it can be rolled and roasted like any lamb roast, uncovered, in a slow oven. Another way is to leave it flat, to sew around the edges except on one side, and to place a bread dressing in the pocket thus formed.

STUFFED SHOULDER OF LAMB

- Shoulder of lamb
- Salt and pepper
- 2 cups of soft bread crumbs
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 2 tbsp. bacon drippings
- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- Meat stock or hot water

Have the lamb shoulder boned and sewed on two sides, leaving one side open to insert stuffing. Season the meat with salt and pepper. Brown in bacon drippings and combine with chopped celery, bread crumbs, and enough hot water or meat stock to moisten. Fill the cavity with the dressing and sew or skewer the edges together. Place the roast fat side up on a rack in an open pan. Roast in a moderately slow oven (300 deg. F.) until done, allowing about 40 minutes per pound for the boned lamb roast.

The lamb breast may be used in similar fashion. A pocket can be cut and a dressing placed in this. All of the bones, including the shank bone, may be removed and the shank meat rolled with the breast meat.

CASSEROLE OF LAMB SHOULDER

Lamb shanks can be used to make a very delicious and economical main dish if you serve them as restaurants frequently do. Instead of having the meat cut from the bones for stew, cook the shanks with vegetables in a casserole.

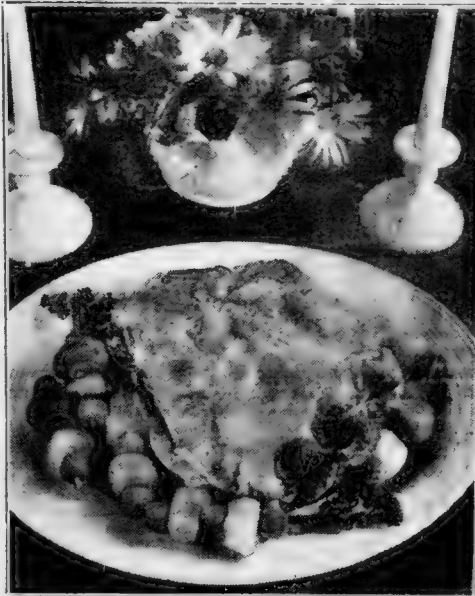

First, season them with salt and pepper and brown in hot lard. Then cover with peas and carrot halves and peas. Add a little hot water, cover the casserole tightly and cook slowly in a moderate oven or on top of the range.

Lamb necks also can be prepared in tasty fashion. Here is a satisfactory and different way to use them.

LAMB NECK SLICES WITH VEGETABLES

- 4 double lamb neck slices
- 2 tsp. flour
- 2 tsp. lard
- 4 carrots
- 1 can green beans
- 3 potatoes
- 1 small head cauliflower
- Salt and pepper

Have double lamb neck slices cut three-fourths to one inch thick. Dredge these with flour and brown in hot lard. Add 1 cup water. Pour the liquid from the meat in the casserole, cover and put in a slow oven (300 deg. F.). Cook until the vegetables are done. Cook the cauliflower in boiling water until tender. Before serving, place a cauliflower flower in each cavity made by removing the bones from the neck slices, and place the slices on top of the vegetables.

THE DELICATE FLAVOR of roast lamb is always enhanced by fruit accompaniment, and here you have an especially delicious as well as a colorful combination, which consists of maraschino cherries threaded on skewers between pineapple cubes and whole cooked figs.

Announcing Secret Marriage

DEAR MRS. BECKMAN,

We were married secretly several months ago, and we would like to announce our marriage. Kindly let us know what wording should be used on the announcement form, and what type of announcement we should use.

Is it proper to send one announcement announcing the marriage and stating that we will live at our apartment after a certain date? How should the newspaper announcement read?

There are two schools of thought about the form of announcing a marriage that has taken place quite a time before the announcement is to be made. Some people think that the same form of an announcement (the engraved form) should be sent out as would be sent out directly after a marriage ceremony had been performed. There is nothing incorrect about this, but it does call attention to the discrepancy in time.

Other people maintain (and I agree with them) that it is more consistent with the unconventionalality of the wedding to make the announcement informally. Therefore, instead of sending formal announcements, they think it better to let the couple, when they decide to announce their marriage, to tell their relatives and friends and to write to those too far away to be told by word of mouth. After all, these are the people most concerned with the news. After all the news will spread rapidly enough!

In either case—whether formal announcements are sent or notes are written—it isn't necessary to send an announcement to the newspapers, and this usually isn't done. The newspaper notice certainly does call attention to the tardiness of the announcement, both to those who know the people, and to those who do not.

I like very much the plan of giving a tea or other informal kind of party after the "informing" notice has been sent. This may be given either by the bride's mother and father in their home, or by the bride and bridegroom in their new home.

School Girl Manners

DEAR MRS. BECKMAN:

I am a school girl, 13 years of age, and I am anxious to improve my manners. I shall be very grateful if you will kindly answer the following questions for me.

- 1—Should I rise when elderly persons, regardless of their sex and relationship to me, enter the room?
- 2—Should I rise when being spoken to by elders?
- 3—Should I rise when being introduced to elders? Also to people of my own age?
- 4—When my father, mother and I enter a building, should I precede or follow my mother while my father opens the door?
- 5—When in a room with only a few people, and a teacher enters the room, should I rise if the others do not?

Thank you very much.
RUTH.

- 1—Yes, you should rise when a grown person enters the room, and you stand until she or he is seated.
- 2—No, it is not necessary for you to rise when an older person speaks to you.
- 3—Yes, you should always rise when you are introduced to a grown person or to a person of your own age.
- 4—Your mother should go first, then you, and last your father. In this way you and your father are being polite to your mother, and your father is being polite and being of service to you both.
- 5—Yes, you should rise when the teacher enters the room... this is very important.

You Can Be Beautiful Nature's Skin-Clearer

By ARLINE GOULD

ONE of the greatest of nature's aids to blemished skin is also one of the most difficult to use, with comfort and ease... and that's sulphur. It has a potent odor to say the least, and many people feel somewhat embarrassed at its tendency to linger.

Imagine our surprise, then, to discover a wonderful 6-1-1 beauty cream, containing genuine colloidal sulphur, which is as pleasant as a May morning!

It's a rich, luxurious, long cream—and it's so effective and so easy by the hundreds of times as they learn about its wonderful healing purging principle.

Any normal or dry skin can use it, even the specially sensitive type. And its uses are seemingly legion. It is a vitalizing agent for the skin, the impurity-erecting pores to keep order. It stimulates the blood, slow moving tissues. You should use it for cleansing, especially if your skin has a tendency to become blemished. And it makes a really marvelous powder base!

It has a quality of coloration when used as a powder base that makes it a grand help to those sensitive to the blemishes of their complexion.

You will want this essential all purpose cream as a permanent addition to your beauty aids, so perhaps you should start right in on the dollar jar. But if you prefer there is a 50c size.

If you'd like to learn about the beauty cream which contains genuine colloidal sulphur and is so remarkably pleasant to use, phone Arline Gould, Liberty 4-2444, seven days until 5:30, or write, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Newspaper Ads Favored

A well known New England food manufacturer has announced a new advertising campaign in which many leading newspapers in this area will participate.

Special emphasis is placed on their canned baked beans baked in brick ovens and as open bean pots in the true old fashioned down East manner.

This campaign is intended to give further impetus to the sale of brick-oven baked beans, already a popular canned food product in this discriminating market.

Toasted Brazil Nuts

TOASTED BRAZIL NUTS

Place shelled nuts in shallow pan; add butter (allowing 1/2 tsp. for each pound of nuts). Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.), stirring several times while roasting. Sprinkle generously with salt after removing from oven.

BANANA FRENCH TOAST

- 2 eggs
- 2 1/2 cup mashed ripe bananas (1 or 2)
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 6 slices bread

Sugar and cinnamon
Use ripe bananas (yellow but flecked with brown). Beat egg slightly. Add bananas, milk and salt. Mix well. Dip bread into mixture. Brown the bread slowly on both sides on lightly-greased griddle or in frying pan. Sprinkle lightly with sugar and cinnamon. Serve hot. Makes six servings.

Love And Marriage Yarns For His Bachelorhood

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have almost no words to express what I think of a girl like you. I know that I shall never in my life have a more perfect mother and the best of housekeepers. My happiness is more than I deserve. Every time in a while I yearn for the slightest case of bachelorhood and wish I had a girl like you, who I could trust, love, and marry as I please.

When I sit down to my typewriter around the door, or come to the table in my dressing gown and slippers or leave my studies and my wife only says it is hard to raise the children to be neat, which that adored father is sure to do. She isn't the seedling kind, but this problem is beginning to get on my nerves.

BENEDICT.

I know it's hard for a bachelor husband to live up to the standards of a thoroughly tidy young wife. But just think of your compensations. Your wife refers to you as an adored father; if you had remained a bachelor you'd probably be as homesick as you were untidy.

Why not ask her to let you have an occasional slipper and dress up down evening? If she's a sensible person, she'll agree to this.

WE INTERRUPT

A Complete Short Story

By MAUREEN
FLEMING

"We interrupt," said the radio, in French, as it stopped playing a languorous song. "All foreigners will leave France at once and return to their own country. There is grave and imminent danger of war. Report to your embassies at once!"

Tessa Beard put her teacup down and stared at her husband and his young pupil, Yvonne. None of them spoke. Only a moment before, they had been talking pleasantly and listening to the music.

They were having tea in the music room of the Beards' Paris apartment. Tessa watched Yvonne suddenly reach over and grasp Denis' hand. Then the slender dark-eyed French girl stood up like a little tower of strength; menacing, daring. Her eyes were fixed upon Denis.

"Americans living in Paris, attention, please," said the radio. "Every assistance will be given you to aid your immediate departure."

The girl, Yvonne, threw herself into Denis' arms.

"You can't go!" she cried; then, to Tessa, "You might as well know. We love each other. And we always will forever."

Tessa saw her husband gaze fixedly at the shining dark hair of the head on his breast. White fire gleamed in his seagreen eyes. Tessa had suspected this situation for the last month. Denis behaved more like a man who had been stunned. He seemed unconscious of the fact that his wife existed. He just stood there, with the sobbing girl in his arms.

Tessa went into their bedroom and put on her hat. A glance in the mirror showed her a deathly white face with deep-set violet eyes and a little up-tilted nose that Denis often tweaked before he kissed her deeply curved, willing lips! But never more. That was over. Everything was finished, at an end for her. Slipping her pass-ports into her bag, she quietly went down into the street.

Crowded taxis flashed by as she walked toward the Embassy. With every step, some memory of the past lashed her. Ten years ago, when she and Denis had married in Greenwich. Denis' appointment as head of the music department of his own college. How interesting and exciting their life had been together!

And then their sabbatical year which they decided to take here, in Paris! That was how Yvonne had met Denis, three months ago. She came for piano lessons; counterpoint, harmony.

And the most poignant memory was the birth of their little son. That was six years ago. How thrilled were they! How tender and solicitous was Denis with his wife. Then their adored child's death. He lived only a year. Tessa had not yet recovered from that tragedy. She could hear as if it were yesterday Ravel's "Pavane Pour Une Infanta Defunte" as the organist played it while the small white coffin was carried to the altar. She could have the memory of her little son—as these French women would of theirs. Suddenly Tessa began to notice the faces of people on the street.

BEFORE THE STORM!

These people looked stricken. Every one grim as they went their way. What was it? Toward the loss of not only their husbands, but perhaps all their loved ones. Their homes—perhaps in ashes.

Their days and nights a constant watch for the enemy bomb with its eerie screech. Who was she to feel doomed and tortured in the face of this comic tragedy? Tessa straightened her shoulders. She went to the Embassy, then to a shipping office. Being one of the first in the line of waiting people, she secured a small cabin on the Manhattan. After these arrangements, she returned, dry-eyed, to the apartment. It was empty. She went over to the concert grand piano and sat there for a moment.

ly with arms crossed on her up-tilted little breasts.

"Madame!" she began—

But Tessa interrupted her. She was resigned now. Denis, her husband, whom she loved, would be free to go to this girl. Her love was not that possessive greed called by the name of love.

"Yvonne," she said solemnly, "I am going away. You will both be happy—together."

"But no! No! Yvonne's voice was thrilled. "That's what I have come back to tell you. I have been walking—have been to my home!"

Tessa stood up and put her hands on the slim taut shoulders.

"I want my husband to be happy. You must not think of me."

Violently, Yvonne pulled away. "I am going into service for my country. My brother—he has been called! Madame, I have come back to beg your forgiveness and to tell you the truth. It was all my fault. Mine, mine."

"It was I who kissed Denis. It was I who begged him to leave you. He never wanted to."

Then like a streak of flame, she darted from the room and down the stairs.

"I LOVE YOU"

Tessa was still standing with hands pressed to her temples when Denis strode in. She felt as if years had passed since last she had seen him. His blonde hair was wet and awry. The crease between his eyes deepened into a disfiguring scar. He swept Tessa into his arms.

"My dear darling," he cried. "Where have you been? I've looked all over for you. That poor hysterical child clung to me so. I didn't see you go!"

"Then, you are not in love with her," Tessa murmured incredulously. "You are sure, Denis?"

"I love you. Only you, my own dearest. How can you ask such a question? As for Yvonne, the poor child was really in love with the music I played. Not even composed by me, but by the great masters. The whole thing captured her imagination. She has come to her senses, now."

Tessa felt his quivering strength supporting her body. How could he know the onus of pain she had endured. Or know about her weakness—her lack of faith?

"We have plenty to do—getting a cabin to sail home," he was saying—"Cabins are scarce as hen's teeth."

"I've got a cabin," Tessa picked up her bag from the piano to exhibit the ticket.

"You wonderful girl!" cried Denis, "what luck!"

"It's awfully tiny," she apologized, "meant for me alone!"

"For us alone," he corrected. "We interrupt," the radio had said.

Hollywood Notes

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—Our Susan Hayward will no more than get by her bags unpacked when the troupe arrived Sunday than she's due to report to Paramount for the chief female role in "Mystery Ship."

Ray Milland will be the hero in this Robert Grant story—but before I tell you more about the yearling I want to say that Susie deceived this break. She has made so many fans across the country, not only because she is clever but also because she has a grand sense of humor and was always swell to the autograph brigade.

"Mystery Ship" deals with the current headline stories about sea raiders disguised as merchant ships and will be produced by Eugene Zukor with Akim Tamiroff, Lyda Overman and J. Carrol Naish also in the cast.

The ultra swank social event in Hollywood Monday will be the milk cocktail spree Elias Maxwell is tossing in honor of 19-months-old Peter B. Good at the Roosevelt Hotel. Elias has sent out numerous invitations to the children of the stars and the Hollywood press folk that should spoil them for juvenile doings from now on.

Prospective guests have been informed "no adults will be allowed unless accompanied by children." An honest-to-goodness grown-up doorman will be on hand to pass "Mr. Peter B. Good's kiddie crew" after the festivities and I do hear that master Good is wearing "formal" diapers to the event.

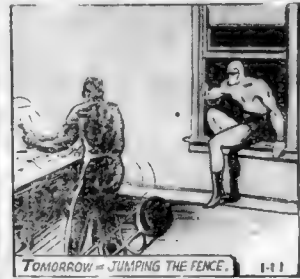

Good news that Claire Trevor is getting along so nicely that she can report to Republic to complete "Dark Command" Feb. 1. Claire's long and serious illness is said to have added $250,000 to the cost of the picture—Although I find such a big amount hard to believe.

In the meantime the doctors have ordered a rest of from six to eight weeks for the little Trevor when she finishes "Dark Command" before allowing her to even talk about "The Woman Command" (an old Pola Negri hit) at RKO.

FOOTBALL HEROES GUIDED TO N. E. COLLEGES

All-Scholastic Team, Coaches Get Awards

By MICHAEL GILLOOLY

Sports Editor Jack Conway advised the Boston Evening American-Daily Record All-Scholastic eleven, banqueting at the Hotel Lenox last night, to try New England colleges in preference to Southern and Mid-Western institutions.

Speaking as toastmaster at the dinner tendered the Board of Coaches and the All-Star team, Conway warned the boys against accepting tempting scholarships from outside schools.

"It's surprising the number of Southern and Midwestern schools that come to New England for their football material," said Conway.

"They take the boys to their spring training camps the same as the baseball teams do. Sometimes, there are between 80 and 100 boys working out for the scholarships."

"You may make the grade but then you can't always be sure that you'll be treated right."

"Tennessee, this past season, offered a fine example. With close to $100,000 coming into the treasury, officials of the school refused to take the entire squad to the Rose Bowl for the New Year's Day game."

"You won't find any better colleges the country over than we have in New England. So try your local schools."

Conway went on to introduce Joe McKenney, physical director of the Boston schools, who complimented the boys on their selection on the team by such outstanding schoolboy coaches.

"You should be doubly proud to know that these coaches, master-minds of the schoolboy ranks, should pick you," declared McKenney.

Gold footballs were presented to the eleven boys picked on the official team. This group included Joe King, Boston English; Bill Kirrane, Brookline; John Furey, Medford; Weldon Osborne, Salem; Bob Barney, Brockton; Ed Tobin, Arlington; Bill Harvey, Everett; Ronald Sliney, B. C. High; Bernie Lanoue, Brockton; Bob Mangene, Malden and John Callagy, Lawrence.

The board of coaches who picked the team were Jim Mansfield, Haverhill High; Bill Broderick, Salem High; Fred Ostergren, Arlington High; Harry Downes, Brookline High; Ed "Skip" Sherlock, Hyde Park High, and Bill Ohrenberger, Boston English High. The coaches also received football charms for their efforts.

Mark Devlin, Lawrence, and Charlie Holden, Brockton, were also guests. Both mentors turned in undefeated football teams this past fall.

Bill Grimes, sport writer, introduced the coaches to the gathering.

Neely to Coach Rice Eleven

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 11 (AP)—Spare Jess Neely, a southern gentleman who likes to take his time, bustled about for three days and wound up with a five-year contract to coach football at Rice Institute.

Acceptance of the Southwest Conference school's offer climaxed a month long hunt for someone to succeed Jimmy Kitts, who fell under the axe after a pair of poor seasons.

Events surrounding the Clemson coach's part in the case moved too swiftly, Neely protested.

While no pact has been signed, the 42-year-old coach of the Cotton Bowl winners admitted his acceptance was based on a five-year contract with power to name his chief assistants. He refused to divulge the salary, but it was believed to be $7500 a year.

Bill Wallace, freshman football coach, and Cecil Thigp, backfield coach, will be retained on the Rice staff, but Neely will be allowed to name his other assistants.

Rangers Fear Friends---Not Foes Have Chance to Equal 13-Year-Old Record

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (AP)—The New York Rangers, the hottest team in hockey, fear their friends more than their foes.

Actually the superb-skating Star-Spangled sextet isn't afraid of anything that walks, flies or skates—but they'd shy away from their back-slapping pals if their cagey coach, Lester Patrick, had his say.

And the back-slapping is something fierce right now—because if the Rangers win tonight's game with the Chicago Blackhawks they will have equalled the National Hockey League's 13-year-old record of 18 games without a defeat.

While the Rangers are trying to tie that "almost-incredible mark," the two teams that currently share a first place tie with them—the Boston Bruins and the Toronto Maple Leafs—meet in a "natural" at Toronto.

But to get back to Patrick. He says, "You see, we're awfully young for a major league hockey team and the boys' friends keep telling them how good they are—putting them on a pedestal, and that's very bad for a young team." (The Rangers' average age is only about 25 years.)

Patrick thinks the rarefied air the boys breathe up on that pedestal, plus the terrific pressure of going since last Nov. 19 without a defeat—may cause them to explode some night.

"I try to make 'em think each contest is just another game, but of course they can't forget that long streak," he says.

Patrick, who has been with the Rangers and made them a powerhouse in the league every year for the last 13, has a hunch that if they tie or surpass the record now held by the Montreal Canadiens he "may have a bunch of Yankees" on his hands.

"The boys will play just like the Yanks play baseball if they get over the record—they'll be perfectly relaxed and will win whenever they feel like it."

Patrick, who is known affectionately as hockey's "Silver Fox"—and not only because his hair is gray—says this year's Ranger club is the best he ever coached.

Not that he couldn't find a place for such old time blue shirts as Ching Johnson, Bill and Bun Cook, Frankie Boucher and Taffy Abel.

"Oh, yes," he says, "I've had greater individual stars and maybe greater six-man units—but I've never had a machine like the present one where I can depend on all 15 cogs to work together."

Patrick, whose sons Lynn and Murray are stars of this year's outfit, did give rival coaches some measure of encouragement when he admitted he still has "to point out their short comings to the boys—and they have plenty of them."

Which is a fact other league teams have had practically no success in confirming.

AUSTEN LAKE

Alumni Hunting No College Coaching Scalps

IT LOOKS AS THOUGH THE COLLEGE GRADS, or at least that wing of the alumni who buried their hearts under the campus elms and never somehow dug them up again, are suffering a malignant case of tolerance this mild winter.

AUSTEN LAKE

There are no hollers by mail from alumni bigots calling for some coach's job, no demands that this author kindle a hot-seat under some varsity teacher whose kids fumbled to Applejack Tech in the big objective game.

It is unaccountable. For there are usually three good alumni mutinies going on at this time of the year to relieve the dumb, dull monotony of column building. Just a year ago Gil Dobie's shirttail was on fire at B. C. The year before that Harvey Harman's cuticle was stretched on Pennsylvania's fence.

Still, over the years the proportion of varsity failures is always 50 per cent. For the volume of varsity flops always equals the sum of other varsity victories. So, somewhere, the agony of college alumni is always at a constant boil with elderly sophomores always starting insurrections.

Which is why, now, I cannot understand the ear-splitting silence and the absence of postal screams.

Martin J. Althouse, a Boston bricklayer, is wondering whether Suffolk Downs doesn't owe him $119.40. The debt dates back to last June, and Althouse is having a belated look into the matter. One day, during the summer meeting, Althouse bought a ticket on the daily double, selecting a horse named Lightning Lady in the first race and another named Crowned Glory in the second. Though his selections won, somehow in the fluster of the moment he misread the "tote" numbers and tore up his coupon. Later his heart gave a bulging leap as he discovered that he had destroyed collateral worth $119.40. But he finally consoled himself with the thought that he had lost, after all, only a $2 investment.

Lately he has been thinking it over, having read in this pillar about payoffs on lost or destroyed tickets, and is contacting Suffolk's auditors. His chances are slim, yet there have been numerous cases where negligent betters have collected by affidavit from New England horse parks. By stating the sum, horse and date on which the wager was made, track auditors often check the unclaimed surplus on that race, and, if they find it equals the sum claimed and are convinced that the claimant, on his oath before a notary, is reputable, he sometimes collects his cash.

This will also answer Manuel Freitas, North Easton accordion player, who says he tore up a Narragansett ticket on the last day of the spring meeting. He had a win stub on a horse named Janneen, but tore it up when Abbot's Hour finished first. It was the dusk of late evening. Too late he realized that Abbot's Hour had thrown its jockey at the post, finished riderless and was therefore disqualified.

LIKE THE EARLY FRONTIER FEUDS BETWEEN sheep and cow men, no group of sportsmen detect each other with greater conviction than the horse and greyhound people. Lately the horse tracks have been talking of installing receiving barns as a direct copy of the dog plants "Jenny Hill" where the gambling giddysaps would be locked up for two hours before post-time to prevent last minute manipulations. Washup suggestion of the dogmen is for four receiving barns, one for the horse, one for the jockey, one for the owner and the fourth for the trainer, with individual sound-proof, padlocked cells. Fle for the mutt-men!

NEXT WEEK BILLY EVANS, SUPERVISOR of the Red Sox farm system, comes for his annual mid-winter visit with the parent club. The large, florid and gregarious chief of the Sox scouting department, is among the busiest members of the Yawkey family, having the curious faculty of being industrious and looking lazy about it.

Billy faces his sixth summer of frisking the corn belt and rural baseball centers, looking for likely youngsters to add to the payroll. He travels 10,000 miles a season, mostly on short day-coach jumps, sleeps in way-stations and the pitcher-and-bowl hotels of the sunny, suffocating South. He rattles along miles of narrow gauge railroad, sits the boiling hours away in yoke! bath parks, eats at cracker barrel emporia and spends perhaps $100,000 a year on yoke! hay chasers, above his own expenses.

For this effort and outlay Billy has signed more than 100 of the several thousand players he has looked at, and has just completed a dossier of last year's work which contains the statistics of his 1939 tour—a volume nearly as thick as a telephone book. Of the entire catch, he says, he will stake his reputation that at least 10 per cent will make the major league grade within three years—that proportion being counted a high yield in the business. Yet on past performance the Sox farm system has produced, perhaps, 5 per cent of the present Boston roster. Ted Williams and Bobby Doerr, the outstanding discoveries, having been lassoed by Eddie Collins puss'n'ly.

SMARTEST TOURIST CENTER IN NEW ENGLAND is New Hampshire, where pleasure pilgrims swarm for winter sports. Why New Hampshire is smartest is because it has put Federal rehabilitation money to shrewder use than its neighbors. Where Maine, Vermont and Massachusetts employed its CCC camps of junior woodmen on trivial reforestation and inconsequential bushwhacking, N. H. employed its CCC regiments to build ski trails, erect chutes and perfect the terrain where winter sportsmen flock in the snow season. Result is that New Hampshire's winter tourist trade has crept gradually upward until it exceeds the summer yield by some 70 per cent.

At Mechanics

Paul Junior Has Another Chance

By RINGSIDE

The Argonne A. A. will step to bat with another double windup at Mechanics Building tonight.

The clever George Salamone of East Boston, a former All-America champion, will try to continue his run of ring victories when he tangles up with "Poison" Ivy of Hartford.

In the other ten, the rugged Paul Junior of Portland will have Carl "Red" Guggino of Hartford as an opponent.

KNOCKED OUT ZULLO

Salamone has come a long way since he battled as an amateur. He reached the peak of his form last week when he knocked out Jerry Zullo of Chelsea at an Argonne A. A. show. He is a lanky featherweight who can hit, and believes he will dispose of Ivy. The latter is in the midst of a hectic winning streak, and insists he will open his Boston ring campaign by a victory over Salamone.

Paul Junior has been one of the most consistent lightweights in the country. He twice boxed Lou Ambers, world's lightweight champion, at the Garden.

MEETING FOR SECOND TIME

It will be the second meeting between Paul Junior and Guggino. When this pair met recently at New Britain, the decision was a draw. Each will strive hard to gain the duke tonight.

The two feature 10-round bouts will be supported by two sixes and a four. In the sixes, Martin Riley will clash with Eddie Letourneau of Portland, Riley and Letourneau are action fighters.

Dusty Brown of Fall River and Florant DeMarand of Manchester, N. H., will also go six heats, while Leo DuLmaine of Worcester and Buddy Martinez of this city will open the show in a six-rounder.

On paper, it looks like another top fighting card.

Fight Card

First bout 8:30 p. m.

Main bout 10:15 p. m.

Casey Victor; Yvon Draws

Steve Casey retained his world's heavyweight wrestling championship, beating Rebel Bob Russell in straight falls, while Yvon Robert and Marvin Westenberg battled to a draw in the twin features of Paul Bowser's show before 4000 fans at the Arena.

Casey had plenty of trouble with the Rebel but did away with him in 31:37 and 9:35, both falls resulting from Killarney flips.

Robert pinned Westy in 29:28 then lost the second fall in 14:34. They wrestled through the hour time limit when the bout was halted. It was a terrific match all the way and stole the show.

In other bouts Ernest Franz Heffner beat Bull Martin, 7:20; Leo LeFebvre beat Ed Neuman, 11:13; and Frank Marconi forced Henry Finkelshtein to give up at 18:07 under the pressure of a leg-lock.

DECISION, BAH!—Paul Junior grins as he plans to edge Red Guggino in one of the co-features of Eddie Mack's ring show tonight at Mechanics Building. The pair fought a draw a couple of weeks ago, and the aggressive Junior intends to erase the memory of that stalemate in short order.

Last Chance to Qualify For State Amateur Final

The last opportunity for amateur boxers to qualify for the state championships will be given them next Monday night at the Arena where the Irish-American A. A. conducts the fourth elimination series of 1940.

The third tryouts will be held in Lowell tomorrow night.

Winners in all four tourneys will compete Jan. 22 in the grand finals at the Arena.

Already entered for next Monday's show at the Arena are:

117-Pounds—William Hill, Haverhill; Harold Sente, Boston; Joseph Ward, Lawrence; Tommy Luckman, Brockton.

126-Pounds—Frank Petrarzo, East Weymouth; Joey Connelly, Dorchester; Eugene Morris, Natick; Charlie Truesell, South Boston.

147-Pounds—Eddie Hickey, Haverhill; Charles Sente, Boston; Max Gahan, Boston; John Lewis, Lawrence.

GENE TUNNEY, undefeated retired former heavy-weight champion of the world, looked the part of a big business executive as he gazed across his desk at me in his office on the sixty-second floor of the Chrysler Building in New York.

Tunney got up from his seat and walked to one of the windows. "New York is the wonder city of the world," said Tunney as he looked down upon a sea of skyscrapers.

"How do you like being a big business executive?" I asked Gene. "Fine," was the quick reply. "I have to keep thinking as fast as I did in my two bouts with Dempsey."

Tunney combines speaking engagements with his duties as president of the American Distilling Co.

"I have an appointment to speak in New York this noon," declared the former champion. "Following the luncheon I shall fly to Detroit where I have promised to speak at a party being given by Henry Ford. I am particularly interested in appearing before groups of young men, and have agreed to go to Boston on January 16 to speak at a father's and son's affair in which Sam Simon of Suffolk Downs and the Boston Garden is interested."

Tunney told me that he and his wife flew to Florida following his appearance as a referee in the American-Record All-America bouts at the Garden.

"Flying makes travel easy," asserted Tunney.

I recalled to Gene the time he flew from his training camp at Stroudsburg, Pa., to Philadelphia for his first battle with Dempsey.

"That was back in 1928 and airplanes were not as safe then as they are now," he said. "When Tex Rickard heard I was flying to Philadelphia they tell me he almost collapsed. Tex could see a $1,800,000 gate ruined."

Tunney to Fight for Film Rights

TUNNEY TOLD ME he was consulting his lawyer in regard to his rights in certain pictures of his fights that had been consolidated with other pictures and were now being shown throughout the country.

"I have definite property rights in these films," said Gene. "While it is unlawful to transport fight films across a State line, there is not any wrong in showing the films."

Tunney showed me a personal letter he had received from Frank Murphy who was recently nominated to the Supreme Court by President Roosevelt. In the letter, Murphy expressed himself in the highest terms in writing about Gene and the members of his family. It was evident that a warm personal friendship exists between the two men.

I asked Tunney if he were still interested in politics. I recalled that when Roosevelt first ran for President that Gene campaigned for him, and on one occasion in Maine spoke before 40,000 persons.

"I would not be a candidate for public office," said Tunney, "but as an American I am interested in the men who represent us at Washington."

"I understand that Garner announced his candidacy for President to assure himself being nominated for Vice-President. Some of the New Dealers do not like the conservative Garner, and they planned to sidetrack him. I think Garner is in position to force his way on the ticket, and that he is likely to be the Democratic candidate for Vice-President."

"If Roosevelt decides to run, I think he will win. Who have the Republicans got who can beat Roosevelt?"

"Jim Farley being nominated for Vice-President. Some of the New Dealers do not like the conservative Garner, and they planned to sidetrack him. I think Garner is in position to force his way on the ticket, and that he is likely to be the Democratic candidate for Vice-President."

"I have not agreed with all of Roosevelt's policies, but I believe the President is a brilliant man."

A secretary entered the room to tell Gene it was time to start for his noon speaking engagements.

"I shall send your bag along to the airport," said the secretary.

"I'll fly to Boston on January 16, and I shall see you at that time," declared Tunney as we parted.

George Salamone Meets Acid Test

GEORGE SALAMONE of East Boston will meet an acid test in the ring at Mechanics Building tonight when he collides with "Poison" Ivy of Hartford in a ten-round bout. Salamone is a graduate of the All-America tournaments. Last week at an Argonne A. A. offering he skyrocketed to a knockout victory over Jerry Zulfo of Chelsea.

"Poison" Ivy has had a sensational run of victories in Connecticut rings, and he will probably go to the post a favorite.

Paul Junior of Maine and Carl "Red" Guggino of Hartford should produce action in the other ten-round bout. Junior and Guggino have already engaged in a draw. Junior is well known to Boston fans for his two bouts against Lou Ambers, world's lightweight champion, at the Garden.

The Argonne A. A. has already presented two stirring shows, and Sergeant Eddie Mack declares tonight's contests will also be filled with thrills.

Random Shots at Target

LOU BROUILLARD and Henry Chmielewski will today finish training for their ten-round bout in Worcester on Friday night. Betting is even on this contest. . . . Brouillard won from Chmielewski early in the Summer in a bout featured by terrific punching. . . . Chmielewski had Brouillard on the canvas in the early rounds, but Lou came on to win in a driving finish. . . . Since then Chmielewski has beaten Howell King, and is rated ninth in the middleweight list of the National Boxing Association.

Borican, 880 Record Holder, Races Great Field at Garden

John Borican, who holds the world 880-yard record of 1:49.8, will compete in his specialty against Charlie Beetham, Campbell Kane, Gene Venzke and possibly Long John Woodruff in the half-mile event at the VFW track games at the Garden, Saturday night, Manager John Lane announced today.

Last winter Borican won 34 of his 39 starts, twice defeating Glenn Cunningham at 1000 yards. He made his debut as a miler in the VFW meet last winter, but found the distance too long for him, finishing in fifth position, 18 yards behind Cunningham, the winner.

HOLDS BOSTON RECORD

Back at his favorite distance, the Negro flyer is the man to beat in the field. He holds the all-time Boston record for the 1000-yard run, made in the Prout meet last January, and the records for that distance in both the Prout and B. A. A. games.

Another top-notch Negro entry was also received today when Jim Herbert announced his intention of racing against Harold Cagle, Wesley Wallace, Dick Gill and Doug Raymond in the 600-yard special Saturday.

Herbert was the indoor sensation of the nation two years back, but last winter found the going different. He was going to NYU days and working nights and found the combination too tough for him.

This winter he has tossed his job out the window and is running much better for it.

He launched his '40 campaign last Saturday in the Columbus 500, winning in handy fashion from Mr. Wallace among others, and seems headed back to the heights.

Two years ago he lowered the 500 standard to 1:11, a mark which still stands.

GREAT FIELD FOR MILE

The greatest mile race in indoor history is promised here Saturday because in addition to Glenn Cunningham, Chuck Fenske, Archie San Romani and the Rideout twins, Luigi Becali, 1932 Olympic 1500 meter champion, entered the lists this morning.

In the two-mile run are Don Lash, Joe McCluskey, Tommy Deckard, Greg Rice and Walter Mehl.

Columbus Squires Race on January 21

The Columbus Squires will sponsor the third annual state-wide track meet for Squire Circles at John J. Williams Municipal Building, South End, on Sunday, Jan. 21. Events will be: 440-yard run; 220-yard run; high jump; broad jump; dash, and special events for boys who have not reached their 16th birthday.

COURT GAMES WANTED

The North End Union wants basketball games with any fast amateur or semipro fives. Managers call Eddie Parker, at Hancock 3462 from 9 to 6 daily, or Mystic 2434-M from 6:30 to 7:30 evenings.

Race Track Bosses To Be Named Today

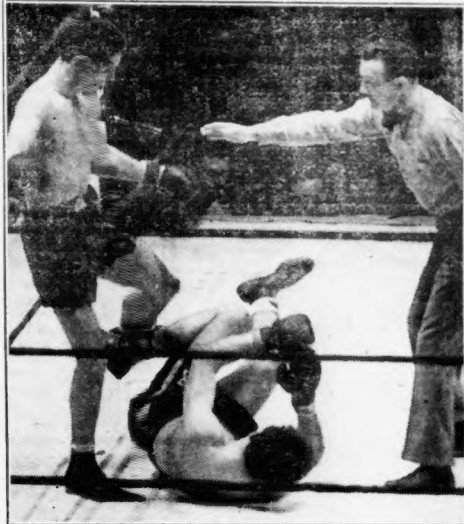

Announcement of the names of those controlling horse and dog tracks in Massachusetts was eagerly awaited today.

It was learned that Gov. Saltonstall may ask the State racing commission, which has made known the names of individual stockholders, to disclose also identity of those stockholders holding financial control.

The commission has refused thus far to divulge individual holdings, contending that this information was "for the use of the commission only, and therefore privileged."

Atty-Gen. Dever has ruled, however, that the number of shares held individually is part of the public record and could be made public by the commission.

LIST TUCKERMAN
Bayard Tuckerman, a member of the Executive Council; the late Charles Innes, Boston political leader for many years; Ernest J. and Leopold Cousin, also rated as political leaders in Boston, and trustees of the estate of Joseph A. Tomasello, former Boston contractor, were listed as Eastern Racing Association stockholders.

NONCHALANT—Billy Conn calmly leans back against the ropes as his N. Y. Garden ring foe, Henry Cooper, slips to the canvas, and Referee Arthur Donovan gets ready to count. But it was a slip, not a punch and Cooper bounced right up. Conn won, but his barrage of punches didn't seem to hurt heavyweight Cooper a tall.

CONN WINS, BUT FAILS TO SHOW ANY PUNCH

NEW YORK, Jan. 11 (INS)—Fugilism's No. 1 glamour boy, light heavyweight champion Billy Conn, today was safely through his coming-out party at the Garden as a heavyweight prospect and was quite the fancy debutante expected, though festivities wound up with a sur note.

Conn beat all the whippers off the chin of poor Henry Cooper, Brooklyn heavyweight, for 12 one-sided and weary rounds, and the conclusion of it all was a window-raising salvo of boos tolling through the arena.

No partiality was shown when the beef was turned loose by the customers. They booed Conn when his hand was raised in victory, then booed Cooper as he left the ring.

The doubled-barreled protest being interpreted to mean that the build-up of Conn as a heavy will have to be conducted along different lines, hence the proposed bout with Johnny Paycheck of Des Moines.

In his first heavyweight bout, several months ago at Philadelphia, Conn stopped Gus Dorazio, and he swept through 12 rounds in a row against Cooper last night, with the result that he hasn't proved much of anything yet, except that his opponents can't fight and he can't punch.

No attempt was made to count all punches, but in one round, the seventh, which was not unlike most of the rest, Conn scored with 12 well-placed left jabs, seven left hooks and five straight rights, all to the chin and face and all packing all the power he could get on the punch in question.

PUNCHES FAIL TO HURT

Cooper scarcely blinked and kept right on falling away. He landed about a half dozen good punches throughout the bout.

Cooper weighed 190 pounds against Conn's 173½. Conn never looked better, but, of course, that was inevitable under the circumstances.

4 Greater Boston Boys On Green Ice Team

Four Greater Boston boys will be in the Dartmouth lineup Saturday evening, when the hockey forces from Hanover face Harvard in a Quod League game at the Arena.

Fred Maloon of Boston, Bob Campbell and Ed Hughes of Medford and Bill Daniels of Newtonville are the local boys who will skate for Eddie Jeremiah's team.

Dizzy Dean Loses Two In Dentist Chair

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 11 (INS)—Hoping to improve the efficacy of his ailing pitching arm, Dizzy Dean ran two ailing teeth extracted today.

His jaw swollen out of shape, Dean, for once didn't feel like talking. But Mrs. Dean said Dizzy would be "terribly disappointed" if the extraction didn't help the Cubs' pitcher.

DAVE WILSON PICKED 41 WINNERS AT TROPICAL'S 17-DAY MEET

Dave Wilson, Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser handicapper, finished the Tropical Park meeting with 41 winners in 17 days to lead all New England handicappers, then hopped over to Hialeah Park where he started off the meeting with a $34.50 winner in Chance Cut.

Wilson not only led New England handicappers at the Miami oval but was leading the nation's turf selectors through Jan. 1 there, according to the Miami Herald.

Wilson's Daily Double profit throughout the meeting was $47.70, and a $2.00 flat on each and every race on the entire 17-day program would have returned an investor a profit of $67.70.

The next Boston handicapper following Wilson had 36 winners for the 17 days of Tropical racing.

Here is Wilson's complete list of winners, day by day, at Tropical:

War

British Tommies group around machine gun in burrowed nest on the Western front as mantle of white covers the scene marking the advent of winter and the subsequent quieting of the war zone.

Mimic

As war rages in Europe, the 101st Regiment of the National Guard put on their winter maneuvers at Camp Curtis Guild, Wakefield, and here, field medical detachment take care of three wounded "comrades."
